Wyomissing High School

WYOMISSING, PENNSYLVANIA

Volume XLI

Prologue

In the manner of the ancient Egyptians, we, the seniors of Wyomissing, have left behind us this record of our scholastic lives. We have seen joy, sadness, and hope. But through all the past years we have become richer through experience.

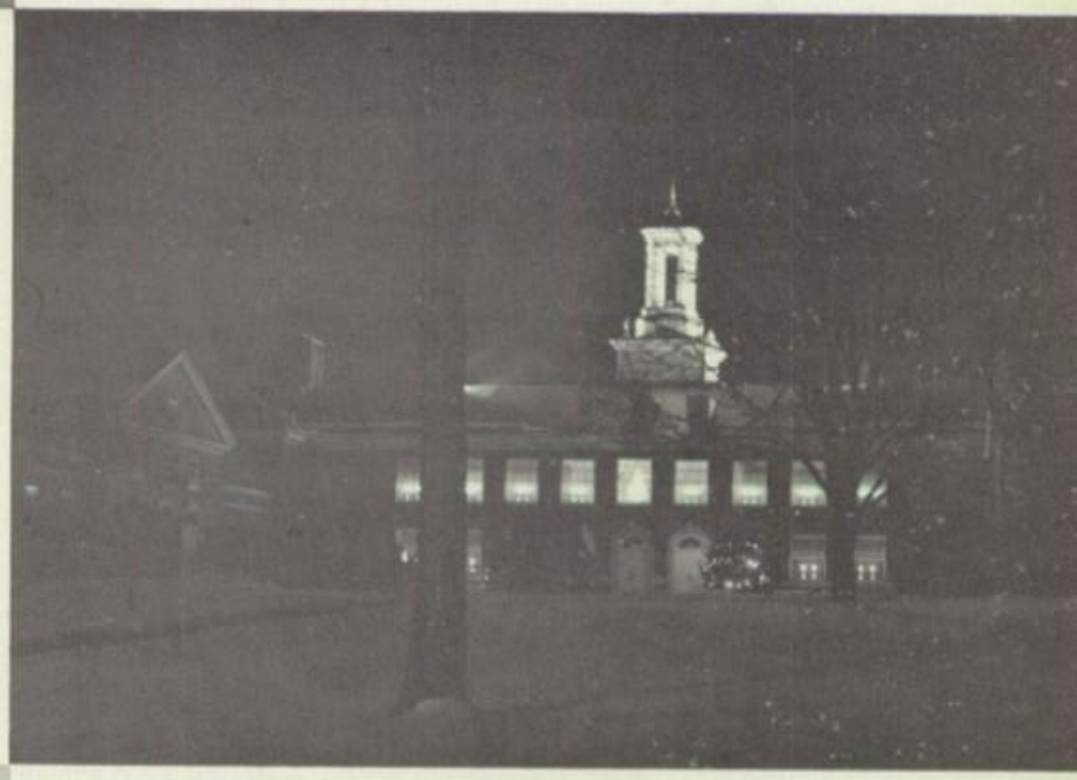
Horus, the falcon-bodied god, is the figurehead of this yearbook. This is as it should be, for he was, to the Egyptians, the giver of life and messenger of the dawn.

Alma Mater

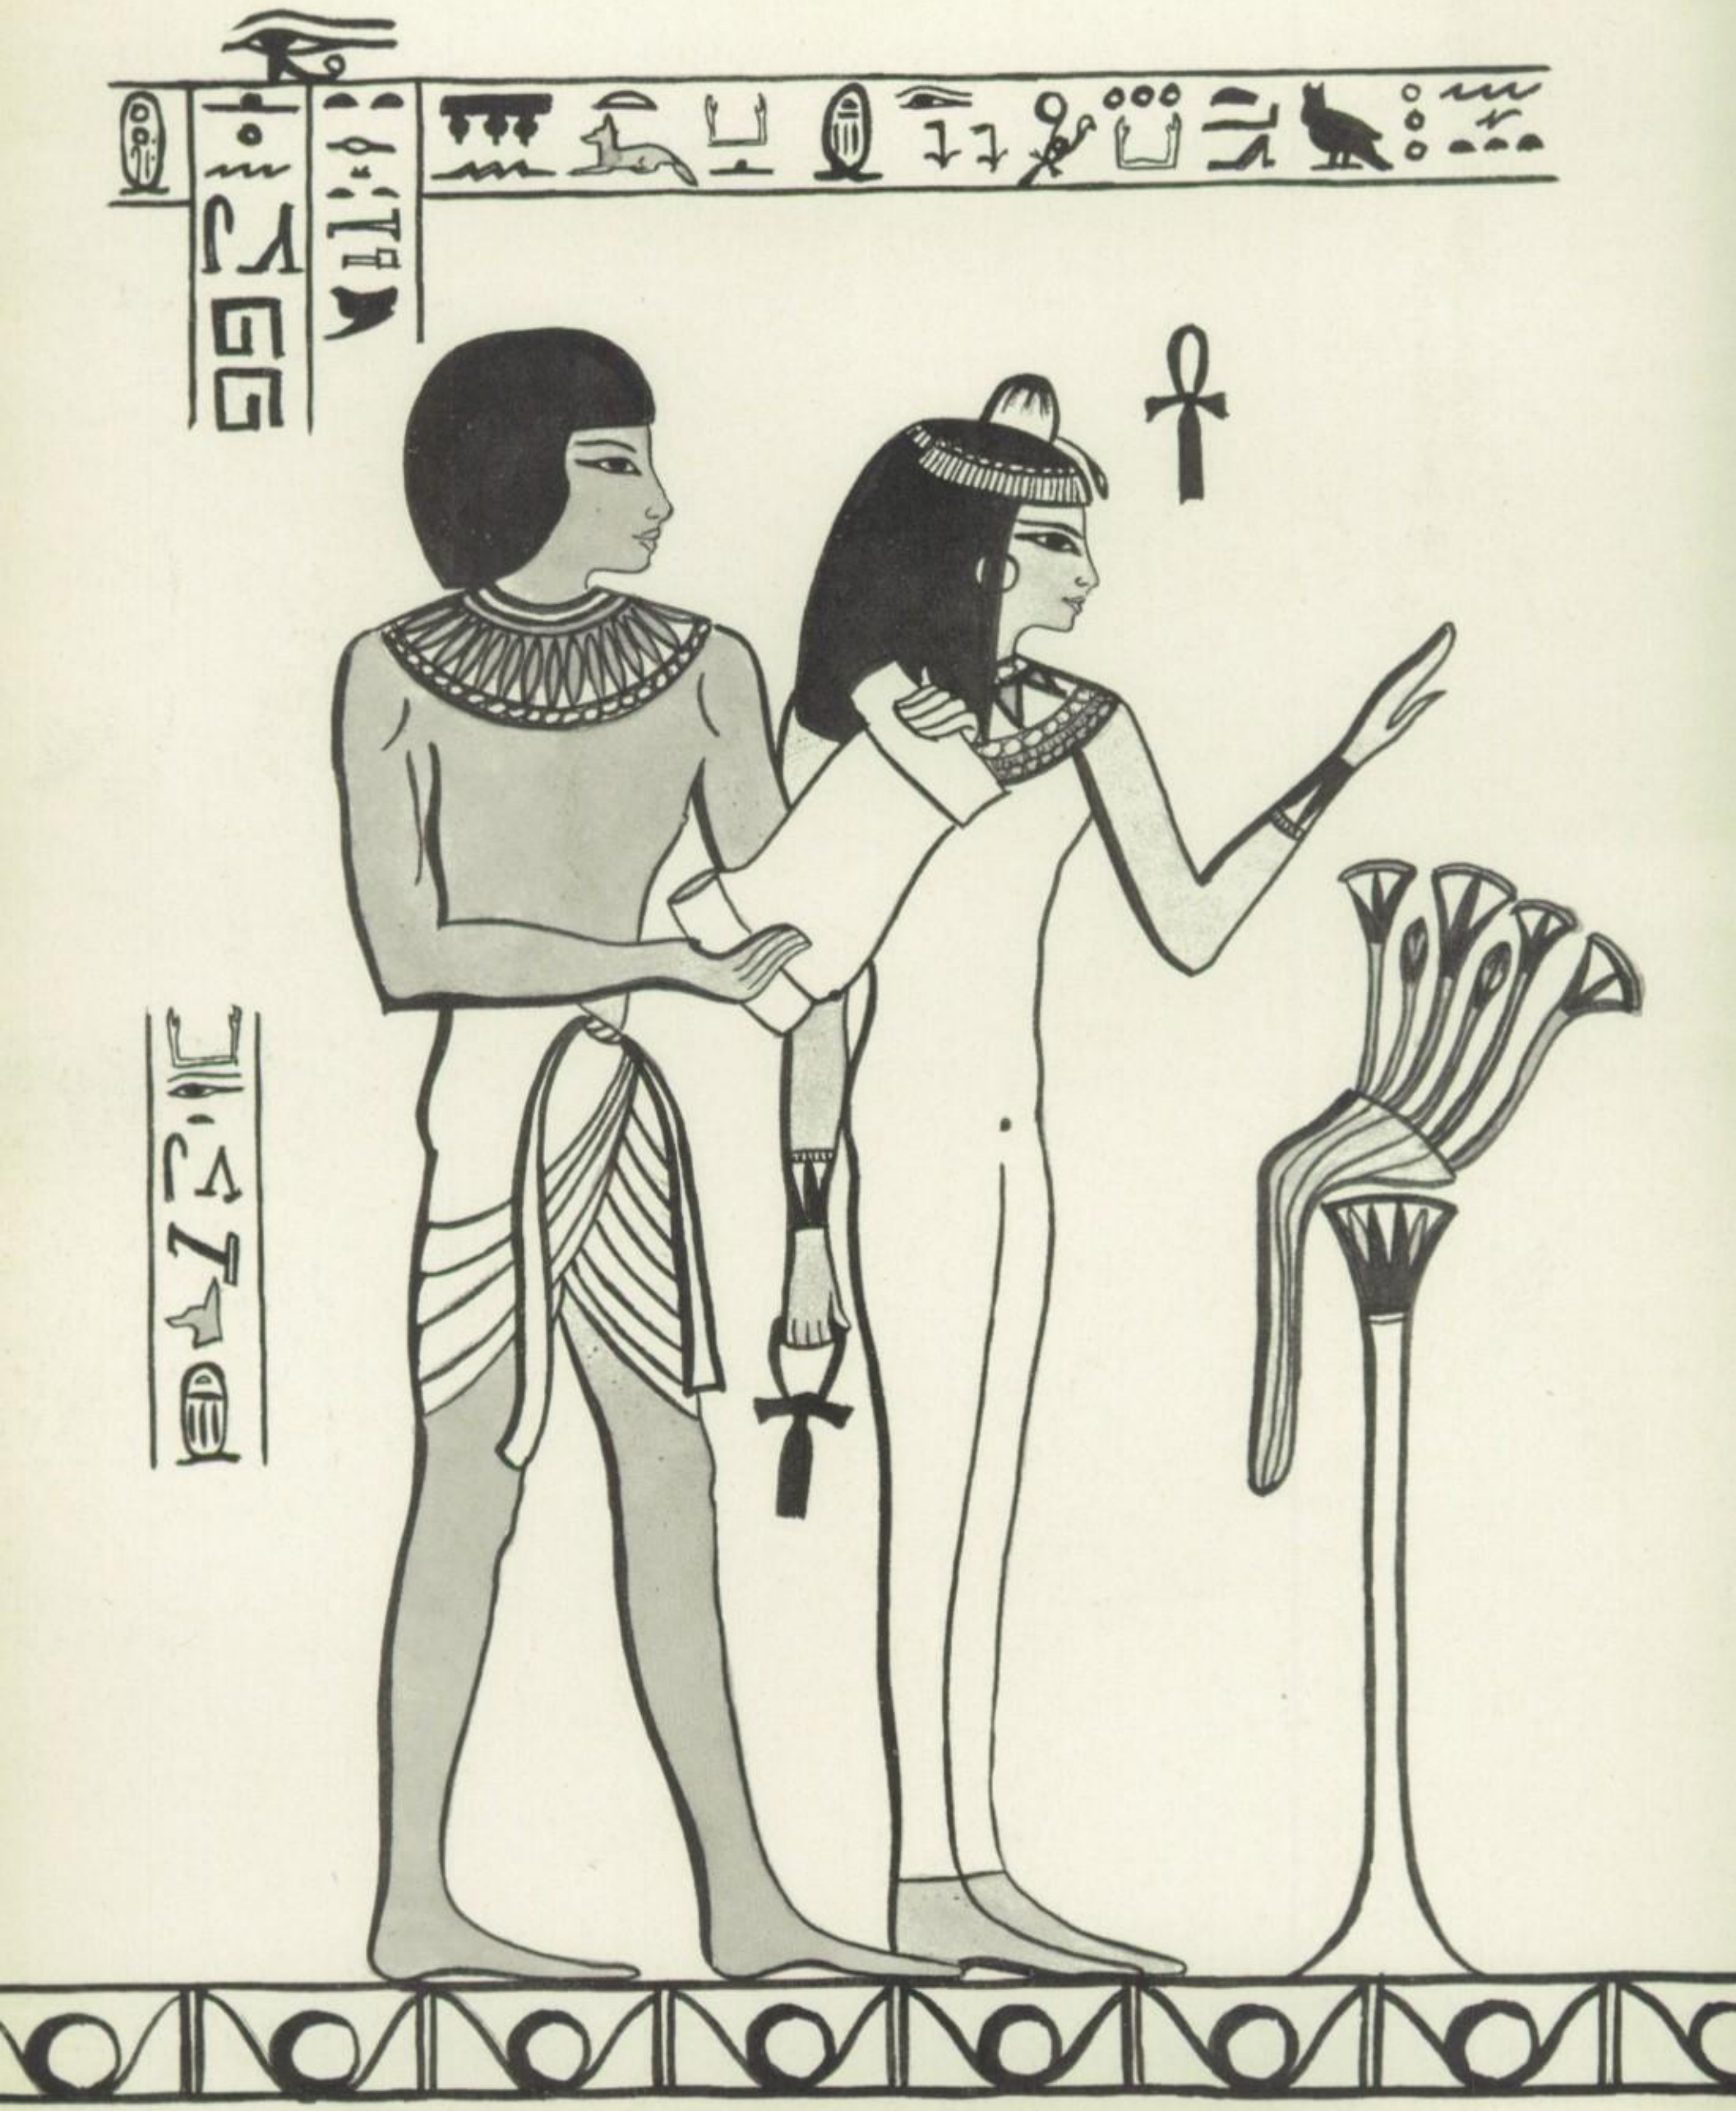
Wyomissing we sing,
Praises to you we bring;
Holding fast your pride and beauty,
Leadership in everything.

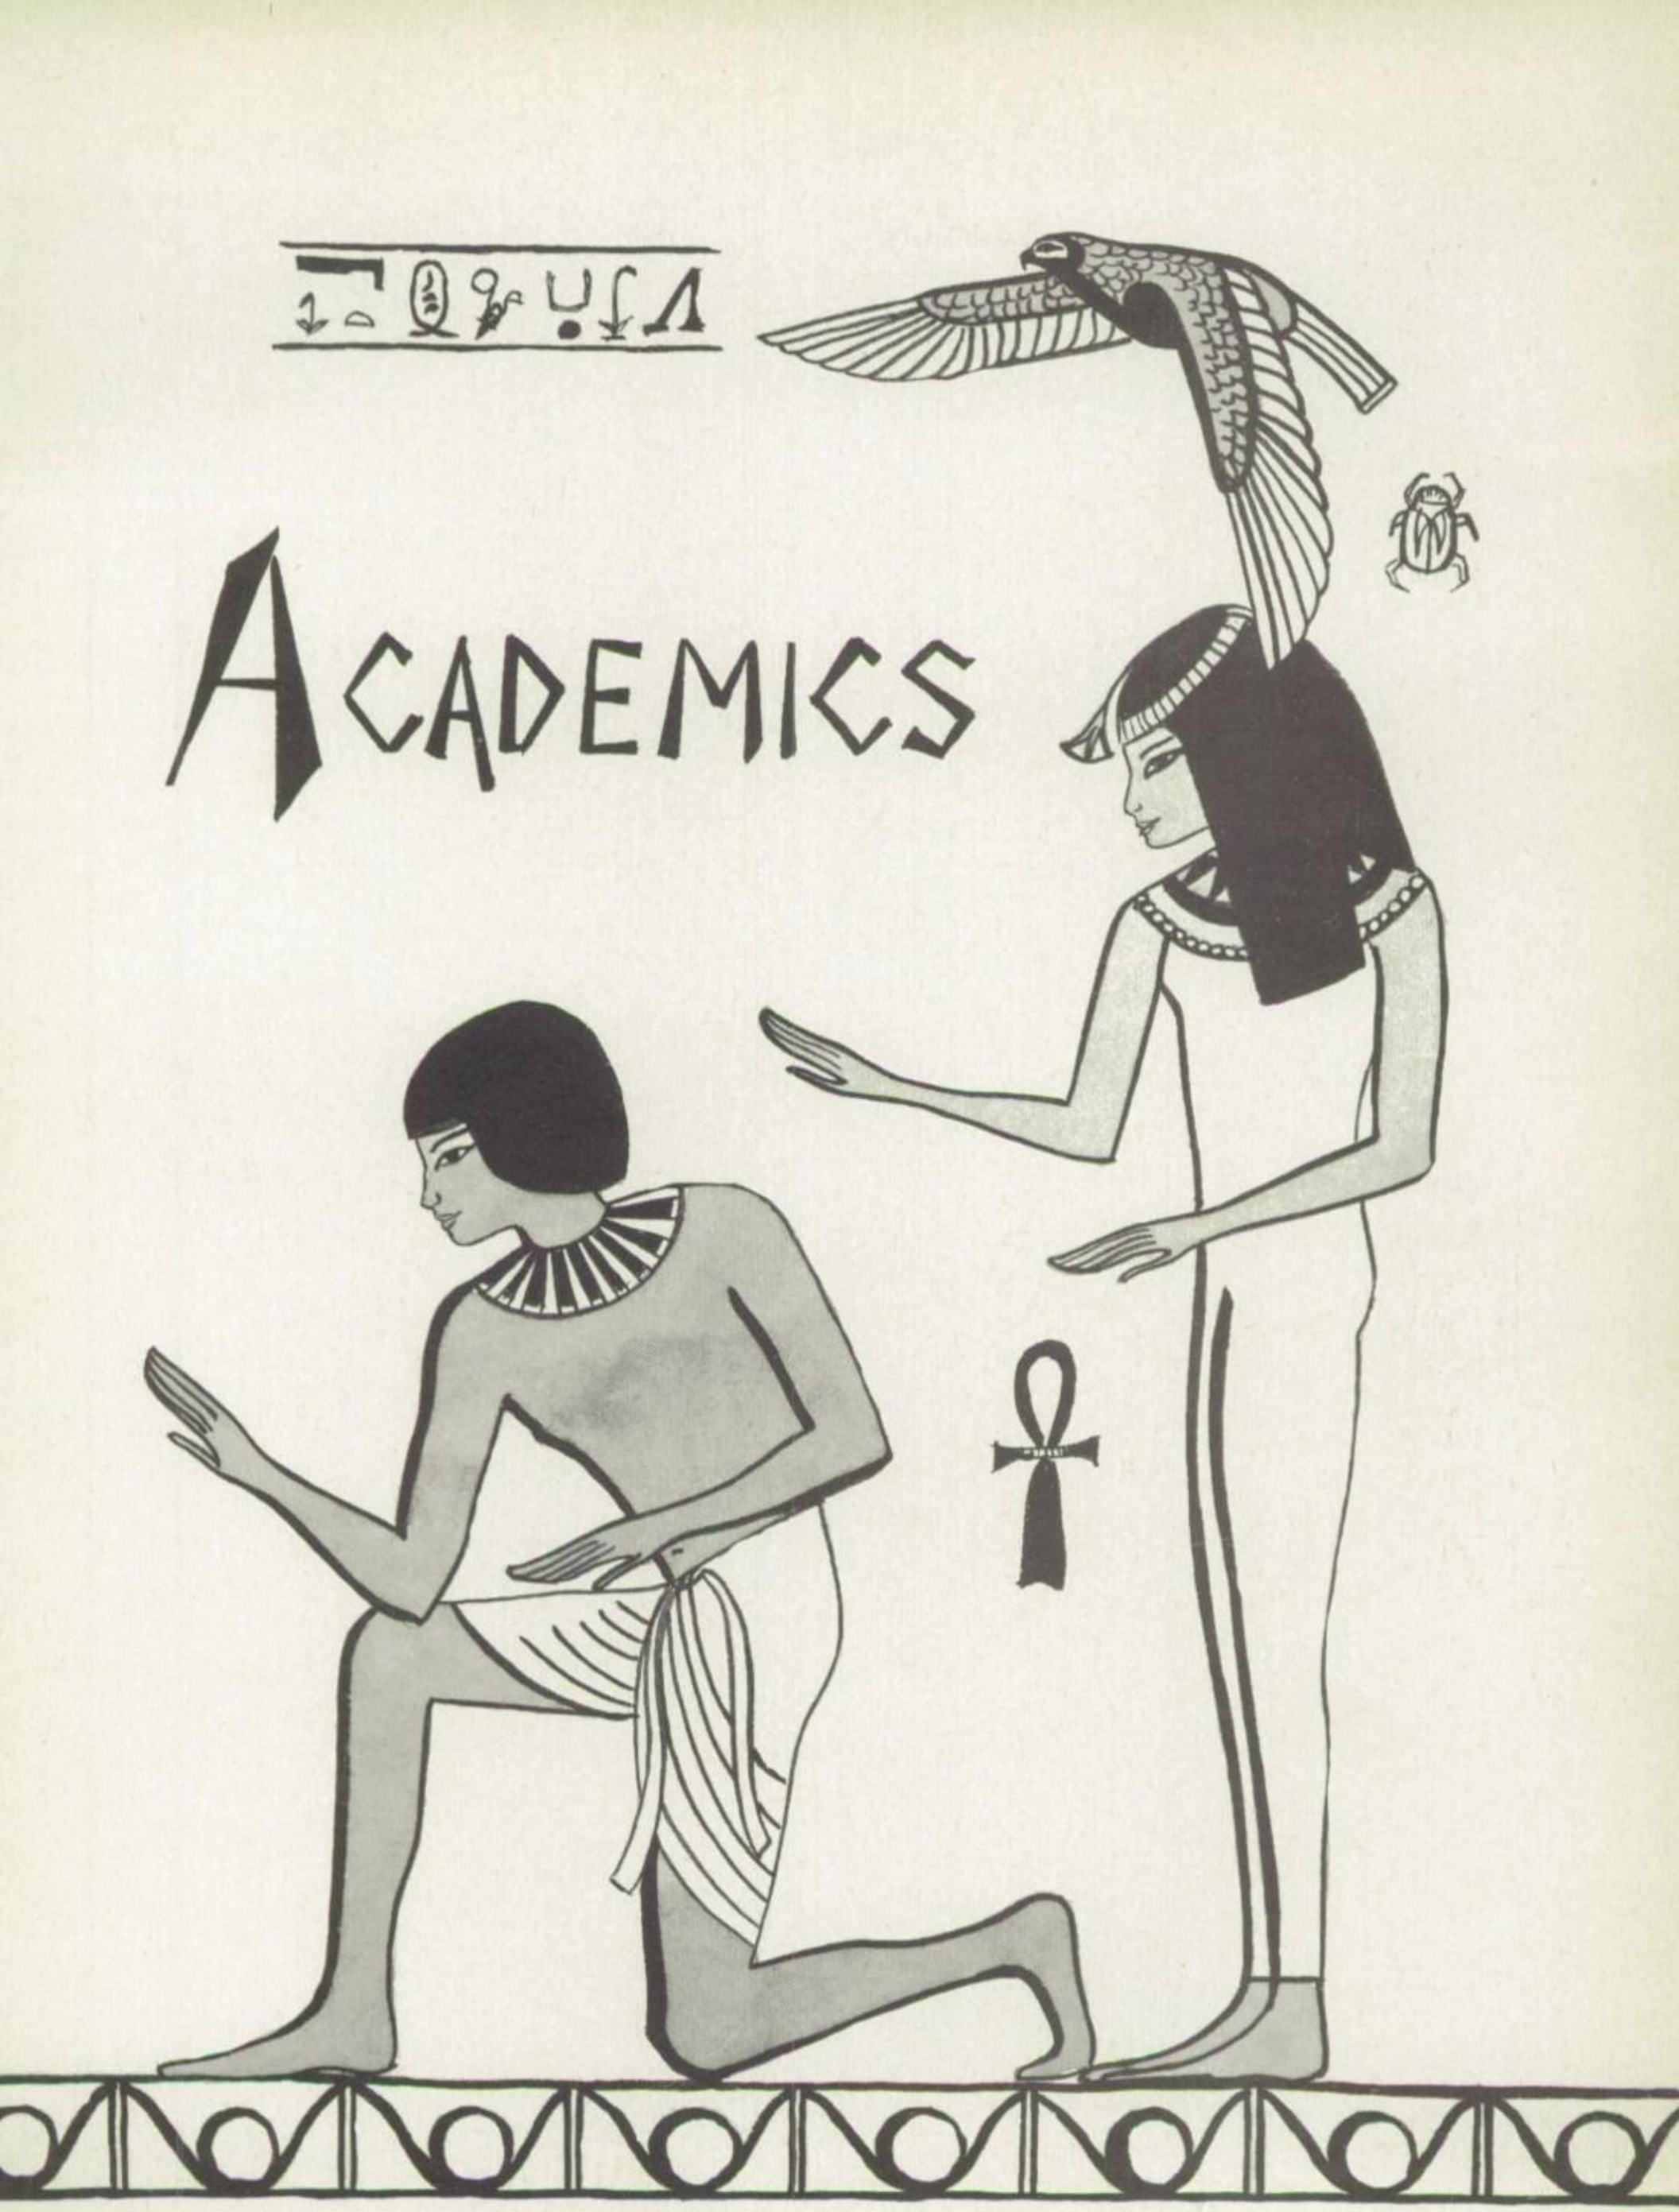
Knowledge for all good and right,
Courage, strength to seek the light,
Bearing high your torch of learning,
May we keep it bright.

Our spirit will not fall,
Alma Mater, we'll recall,
Memories of you we'll treasure,
Wyomissing High - -



Wyomissing, to you,
We will always be true,
Hail to thee and praise forever,
Pure white and clearest blue.





ACADEMICS

Geniality is Mrs. Miller's password.

Mrs. Troutman combines business and bouquets.

Administration

The monumental task of directing the affairs of Wyomissing Area High School falls on the shoulders of Dr. B. Henry Shafer, high school principal, and Mr. Allen W. Rank, supervising principal. Mr. Rank received his master's degree from Columbia University after attending Princeton University and Harvard Graduate School. He joined the staff as a teacher in 1926; previously he had taught at Hanover High School. Mr. Rank later took on the responsibility of principal and superintendent; now he acts as the supervisor of the school district.

Curricula and colleges are Mr. Reitz's business.

Dr. Shafer, a graduate of Susquehanna and Columbia Universities, received his doctorate from the University of Maryland in 1961. He became an integral part of the staff in 1954 when he assumed the position of history teacher and principal, after teaching American history for fifteen years at Hanover High School.

The growth of Wyomissing Area School demands the services of a full-time guidance counselor. He is Mr. John Reitz who also conducts a class in psychology.

Mrs. Jeanne Miller is the receptionist, switchboard operator, and secretary. Mrs. Marion Kozloff prepares the college transcripts, tabulates the attendance registers, and handles the activity fund accounts. Mrs. Nancy Troutman is the treasurer for the high school in particular and the area schools in general.

Mr. Rank's Message

Today we live in an ever-changing world, a world of inventions and industrialization in which the human scene about us is constantly shifting. Because of these changes, problems are continually arising.

We attempt to solve these problems through the medium of education. At present, education is involved in a never-ending race with the catastrophe which comes from the ever-impending chaos of never-ending change. As training is being given in the solution of existing problems, more are being born.

Education is the only hope to avert the chaos and confusion inherent in the dilemma of our times. Never has man needed this assistance as completely as he does in this age when his stage is the world. As his individuality shrinks in the enormity of his environment, he loses his sense of responsibility for the movement of events. Modern education must shore up the dignity and responsibility of the individual man.

American schools strive to elevate the individual through various approaches. As a person nears a state of internal satisfaction, so does society approach this end. Work, play, and creativity are the trinity of achievements. Through education the student secures intellectual development, the extension of creative abilities, the desire to serve others, physical fitness, and wholesome social experience. The Wyomissing Area Schools are happy to assist in meeting this obligation of modern education.

Mr. Allen W. Rank

Dr. B. Henry Shafer

From Dr. Shafer's Office

In recent years, the pursuit of excellence has become a major objective of education. Very real efforts have been made to strengthen school curriculums, to develop new programs of instruction, and to raise scholastic standards, generally. There are still some individuals who offer some kind of "sour grapes" excuse for poor achievement in school. But there are encouraging signs that good scholarship is being sought and appreciated to an ever-increasing extent.

Is it too much to hope that we in America have finally begun to recognize the potentialities in education for national wealth, prosperity, and security? That our nation can remain great only if our schools are the best that we can make them? That education provides for all of us the best assurance of success and satisfaction?

The people of Russia and of the new nations in Africa and Asia are earnestly pursuing excellence in education as the surest means of developing national power and prestige. Let us not be overtaken by them because we do not place a high enough value on education.

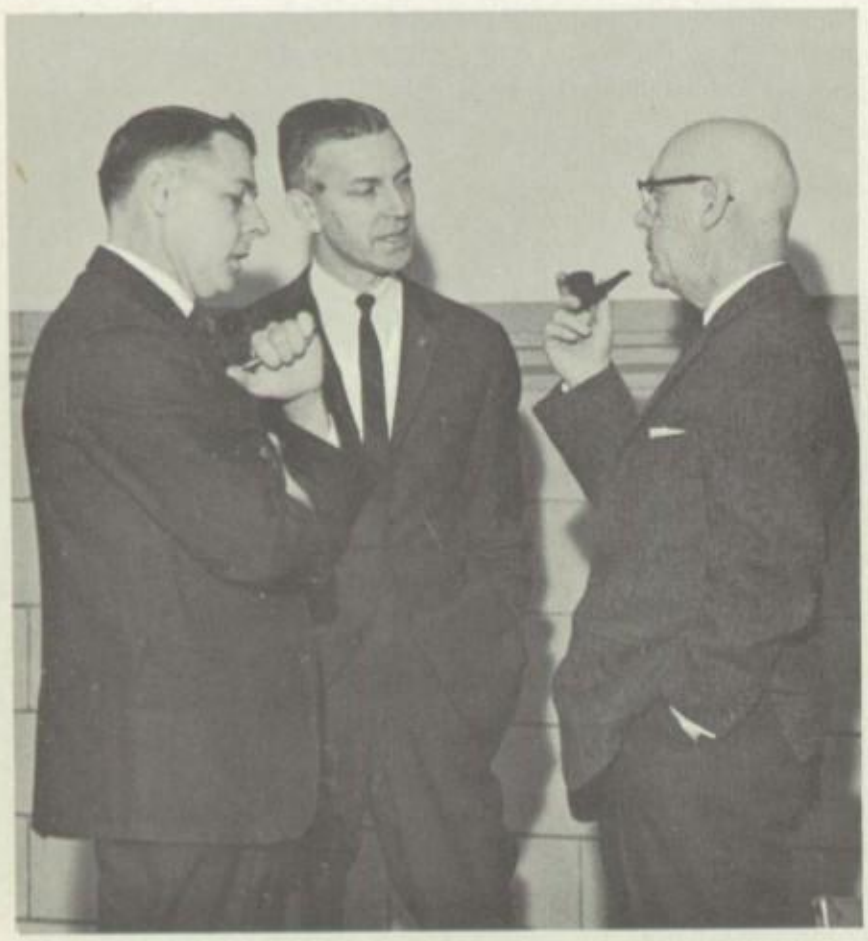
School Board



Trio of school board members in conversation.

The Wyomissing Area School Board spent a busy as well as a fruitful year engaged in administering the final details relative to the physical expansion of the present school plant. It was composed of ten members. Five were citizens of Wyomissing and five were residents of Wyomissing Hills. The roster consisted of: Mr. William Breitinger, president; Mr. Alexander Dracha, vice-president; Mrs. Raymond McGonigle, secretary; Mr. Howard Fry, Mr. Elwood Hollenbach, Mr. Alfred Walter, Mrs. Nicholas Braun, Mrs. Sidney D. Kline, Mr. Charles Fisher, and Mr. Jacob Hain. Mrs. Troutman served as treasurer. Meetings were held on the third Thursday of every month. At such times they considered a plethora of blueprints, consulted with architects and state authorities, entertained suggestions from the faculty, scrutinized construction costs, and debated resolutions. Final plans were approved; a school authority was selected. In January, bids were opened, and contracts awarded. Actual construction began in March.

Mrs. Nicholas Braun and Mrs. Raymond McGonigle visited classes and evaluated techniques observed.

SECOND ROW—Mr. William Pugh, Mrs. Robert Ripps, Mrs. John Stevens, Mrs. Luke Brossman, Mrs. Bror Anderson, Mr. Kyle Whitfield.

Parent Teachers Association

The Wyomissing Parent Teachers Association this year had several major projects on its agenda. Included were the annual High School Halloween Dance and a Halloween party at the Grade School, the sponsoring of several parent buses to the football games, and a fair in April from which part of the profit was contributed to sponsoring the American Field Service student next year. Last year, the Wyomissing Parent Teachers Association had been the sole sponsor of this program. However, for 1964 it will contribute only half, the remainder coming from other organizations throughout the community. This year's officers were: Mrs. Russell H. Boekenkroeger, president; Mrs. James F. Kelly, first vice-president; Mrs. George M. White, second vice-president; Mrs. Roy Farrell, secretary; Mr. Max Krissiep, treasurer; Mr. James Pugh, grade school representative; and Mrs. Lyman H. Houck, high school representative. The P.T.A. officers and members have successfully carried out their main objective, the promotion of the welfare of youth in home, school, and community.

D. Tierney demonstrates his knowledge of grammar to Mrs. Getz.

Mr. Milford happily points out the Colophon's full coffers to B. Rentschler.

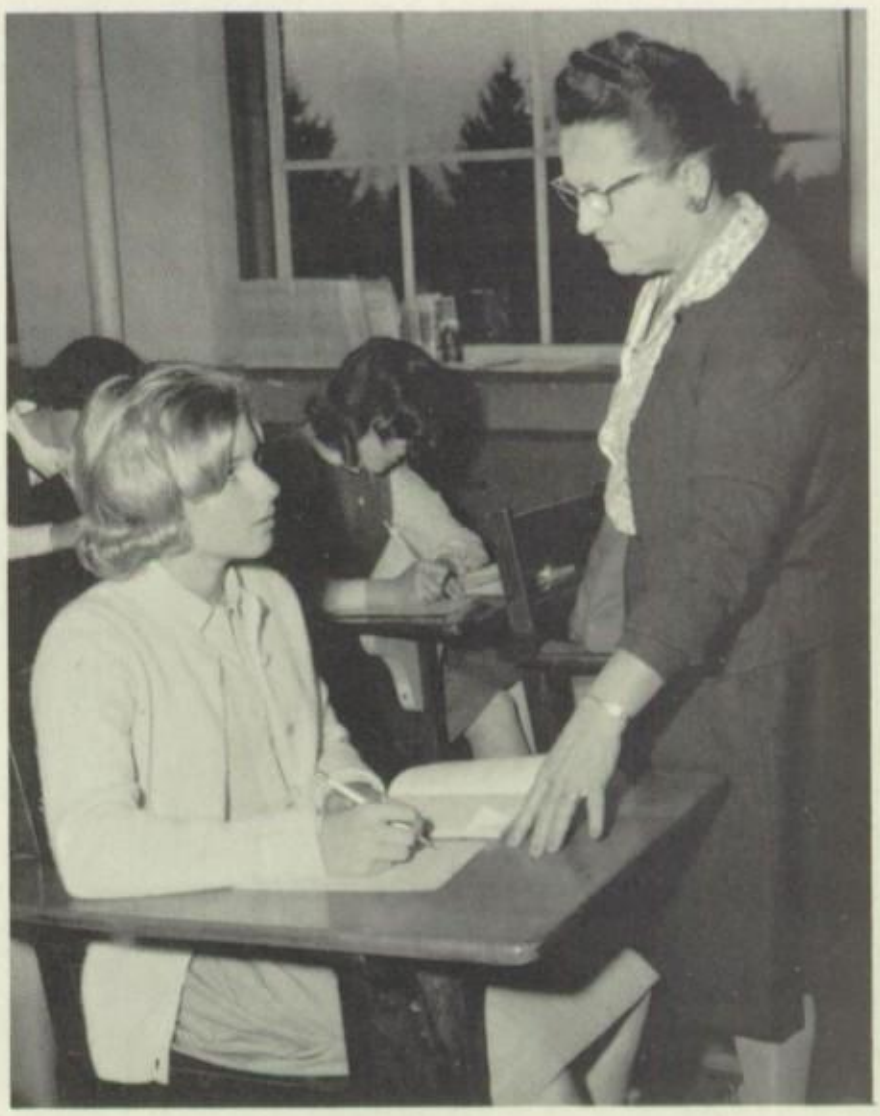
Mrs. Getz poses in front of her students' work.



Mrs. Houck gives assistance to A. Speicher.

English

Marlene and Norma continuing their study of English under Mrs. Hill's direction.

Mrs. Mildred Watson, Mrs. Lyman Houck, Mrs. Clinton Getz, Mr. Paul Boehm, Mr. Russell T. Milford, and Mrs. Schrack composed the English department of Wyomissing Area High School. Until February, Mrs. Watson guided the seventh and eighth grades in the study of spelling, vocabulary, and linguistics to increase the correct usage of our native tongue in writing and speaking. At mid-semester Mrs. Dorothy Hill took over Mrs. Watson's duties. Mrs. Houck instructed the seventh and eighth grades which improved comprehension, increased reading speed, and expanded vocabulary through the use of Science Research Laboratories materials. This course was elective in ninth grade. Mrs. Getz taught the ninth grade in basic grammar usage, correct paragraph structure, and introduced Shakespeare and Dickens. Mr. Boehm stressed the writing of clear themes and book reports, and a varied study of literature in his tenth grade classes. He also directed an elective public speaking course. Mr. Milford instructed juniors and seniors in a concentrated college preparatory course. Juniors studied literature and grammar also under the direction of Mrs. Schrack. Weekly expository as well as argumentative themes were assignments for the senior classes. In the literature field, students concentrated on suitable interpretations of the many symbolisms so prevalent in literature. An Investigative Theme, a thesis on one particular phase on an author, was a required senior project.

Mrs. Dorothy Hill was adviser for the Senior Dramatics Club, Mrs. Houck, for the Chieftain, Mrs. Getz advised the Junior High Dramatics Club, and Mr. Milford was adviser for the Colophon.

Colophon editors confer with Mr. Milford.

"What an interesting composition!"

Social Studies

"And tomorrow we'll have a test."

Mrs. Hinchey keeps her classes abreast of the news with The New York Times.

Mr. Gebensleben listens attentively to W. Kauffman's oral report.

Mr. Aubrey displays his audio-visual techniques to L. Bond and M. Palmer.

Social Studies

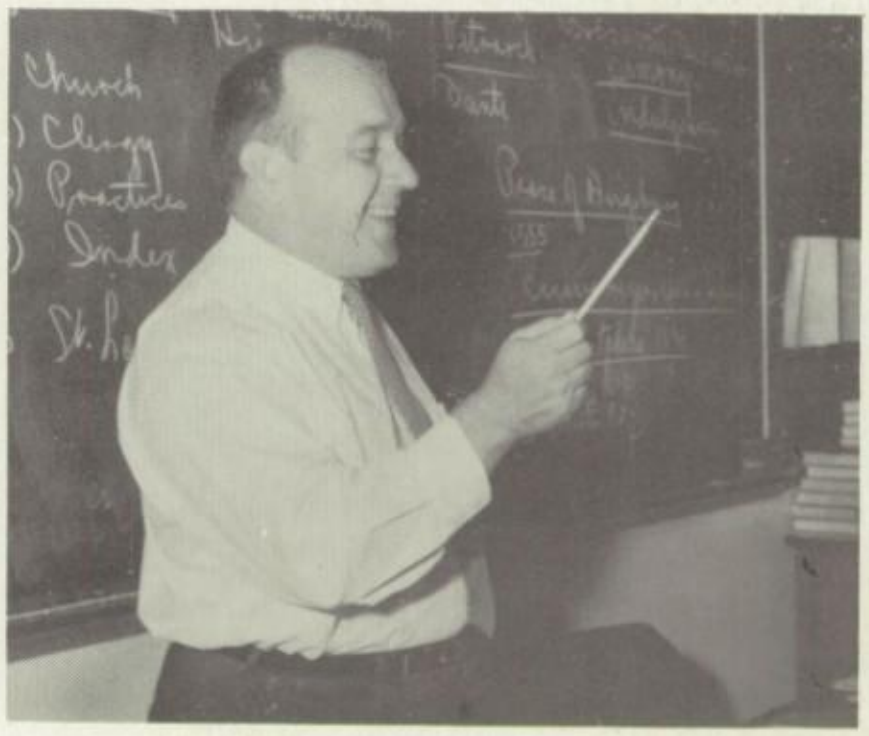
Mr. Reitz explains the psychology assignment to T. Hill.

Seniors discussing the features of our economy.

The social studies curriculum, which is concerned basically with the world and its cultures, both present and past, is compulsory for all students because of its value in a liberal education. Mr. Aubrey taught the seventh grade with a course in world history. The eighth grade received instruction in American history from Mr. Noll. Mr. Gebensleben preached the cause of ancient empires and dynasties to the sophomores. Mrs. Hinchey instructed the juniors in American history and current events. She also headed the senior government and economics classes. One of the major projects of these classes was a study in depth of the New York Times in order to keep up on current problems. After the Easter vacation Mr. Fred Muller took over Mrs. Hinchey's academic chores. He is a native of Cheltenham, Pennsylvania, and a recent graduate of Susquehanna University.

An elective for seniors was psychology and sociology headed by Mr. Reitz. One of the major projects was an extended oral report on a particular assigned topic. Each speaker at the termination of his talk was subjected to cross-examination by the instructor as well as the students.

Mr. Noll leads discussion in his history class.



"What was that answer, son?"

Languages

Miss Jones gives B. Kirkpatrick a little extra reading.

"All right, Garrett, first find the subject, then the verb."

"Comprenez-vous monsieur?" inquires Mrs. Juhlin.

"Muy bien, Jose," says Mrs. Knipe.

Languages

J. Coulton and R. Melton admire the decorative Spanish piñata.

Mrs. Schrack tediously corrects Latin vocabulary tests.

Increasing stress has been placed upon the study of language as a result of closer contacts between countries. Mrs. Schrack instructed students in a four year study of Latin, the classical basis for numerous cultures. Freshmen in Latin I were exposed to grammar, vocabulary, and translation. Latin II consisted of a study of Roman history through the works of Livy and Ceasar's Gallic Wars. The combined third and fourth year Latin classes studied Vergil's Aeneid. Broadening courses in French and Spanish were presented by Mrs. Bensinger, Miss Jones, Mrs. Knipe, and Mrs. Langdon respectively. Until February, Mrs. Bensinger taught conversational French to the junior high. Then Mrs. Wilhemina Juhlin was employed in this capacity. Miss Jones headed a four year sequence of the study of French. French I was basically conversational; French II was designed to acquaint students with language patterns through repetition. In French III, students were introduced to French history, geography, culture, and literature. Later a book of short stories and Le Petit Prince was completed. French IV included a study of literature in greater depth. Mrs. Knipe and Mrs. Langdon led Spanish I students toward the understanding and speaking of Spanish. Spanish II, offered to juniors and seniors under the direction of Mrs. Knipe, consisted of reading and writing Spanish. The instructor especially emphasized the culture, history, and mores of Spanish-speaking countries. Next year, for the first time, third year Spanish will be in the curriculum.

Smile, you're on Candid Camera, Mrs. Langdon.

Miss Jones expounds upon the customs of France.

Mathematics

Miss Brunner instructs students on the fundamentals of S.M.S.G. mathematics.

"Who needs girls?" asks Mr. Weik.

Mr. Costenbader explains the protractor to J. Keeler.

"Holy smokins, macaroons!" ejaculates Mr. Brubaker.

Mathematics

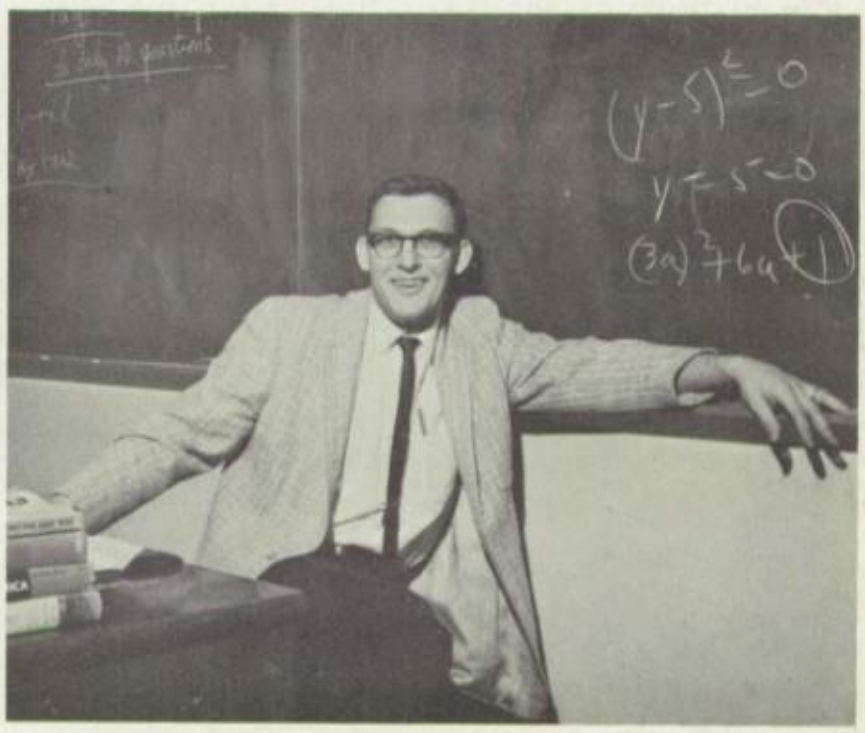
"Aw, come on, give me an easier one, Mr. Brubaker," pleads M. McAndrews.

Mr. Weik drives home some mathematical concepts.

There is a different look in mathematics these days. New expressions are being bruited about. Realigned concepts have come forward. Teachers have changed radically the old preconceived conclusions. S.M.S.G. is the new shibboleth among the sliderule technicians. The alphabetical listing is the convenient term for School Mathematics Study Group. Its aim is to teach the basic skills, to provide a deeper comprehension of the fundamental concepts, to reveal the structure of mathematics, and to instill into the student the ability to sharpen his reasoning power. Among the fraternity of scientific men mathematics is not only a tool but also a language with which the student must be proficiently articulate.

In seventh and eighth grades Miss Brunner laid the foundation for the algebra and geometry courses which followed. Mr. Weik instructed the eighth and ninth grades in the study of algebra and basic geometry. Mr. Brubaker taught tenth grade algebra and S.M.S.G. geometry. Mr. Costenbader and Mr. Brubaker conducted eleventh grade classes in plane and solid geometry by the same system. Headed by Mr. Costenbader, the senior advanced math course pupils studied trigonometry, analytic geometry, probability and statistics, and introductory calculus. There was also an elective review math class for seniors under the direction of Mr. Brubaker and Mr. Costenbader.

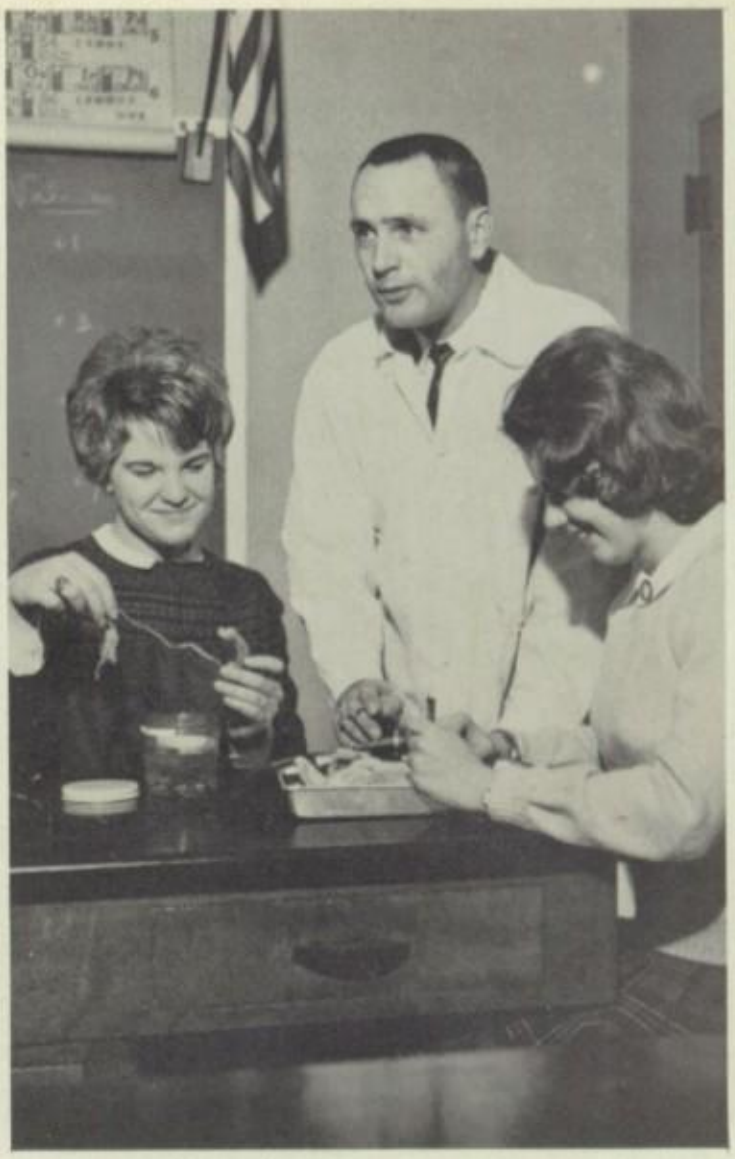
"Take my word for it. Three times three is nine."



"'Cause that's the way you do it; that's why!"

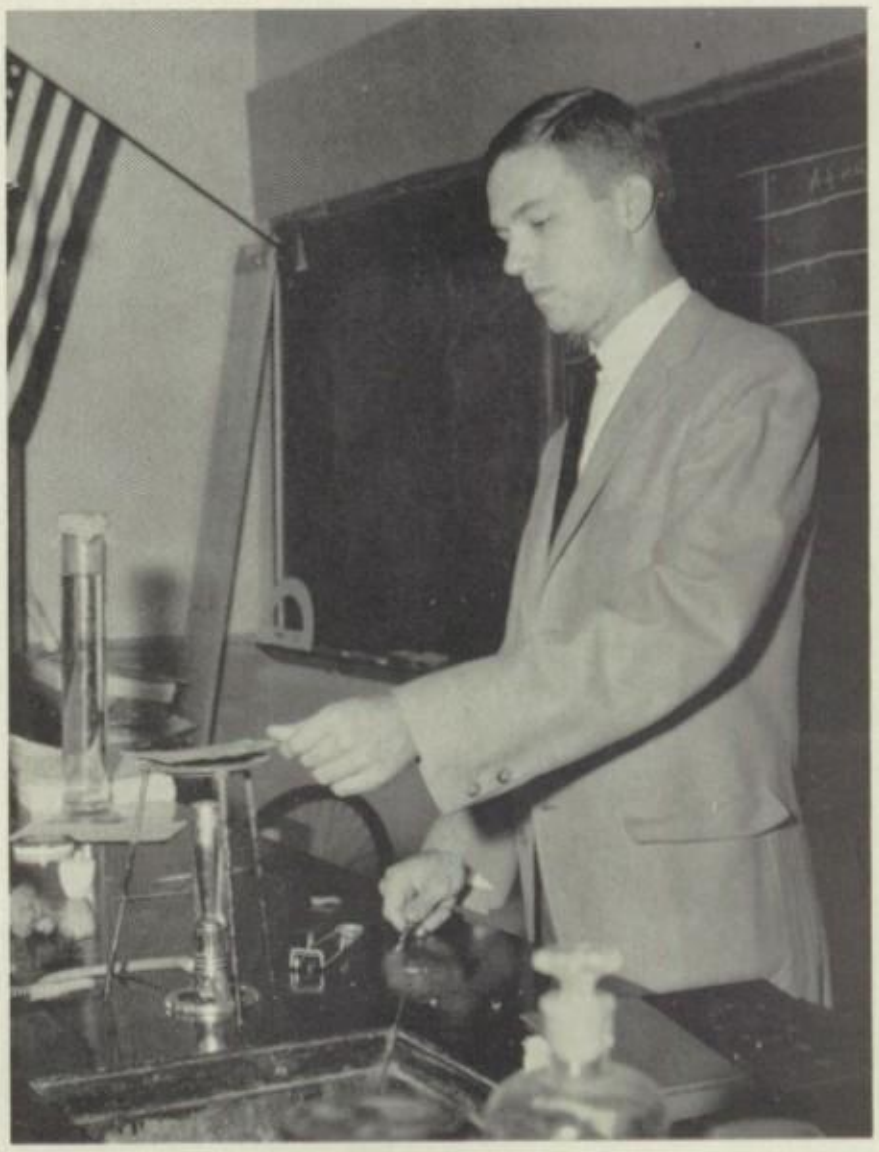
Sciences

"We live in a changing world," stresses Mr. Manderbach as he wields his faithful wrench.



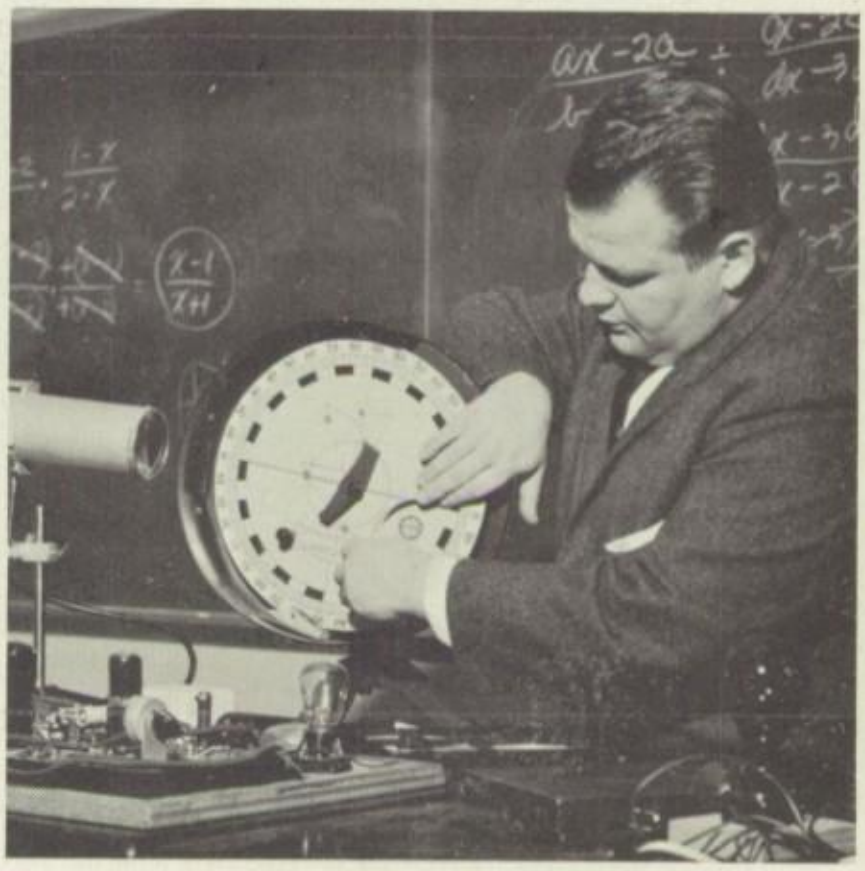
"Ooey gooey was a worm," moans M. Porch.

"According to Ohm's law . . . . . ," declares Mr. Weik.



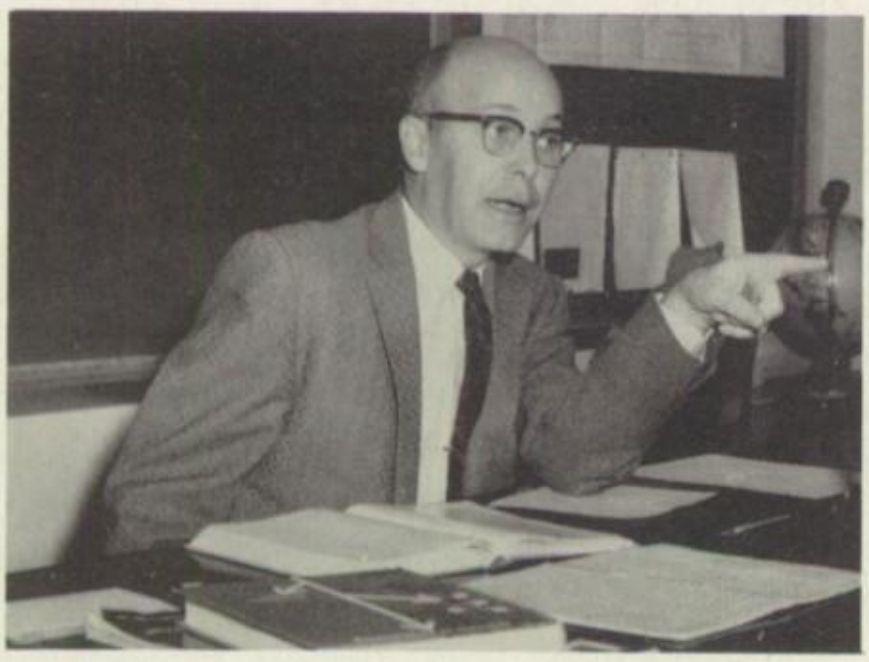
Mr. Dunkleberger performs a scientific demonstration!

"Hey, who put that frog in there?" demands Mr. Dunkleberger.



"Hmm, I wonder how this works."

An ever-broadening course of science was instituted throughout the high school. Mr. Harry Manderbach introduced to the seventh graders a general background in science. The eighth graders under his direction spent the year building an understanding of geology, astronomy, and meteorology. Through a joint effort, Mr. Manderbach and Mr. Ronald Dunkelberger taught exploratory science designed to introduce the ninth grade to chemistry, physics, and biology; experiments were a requirement of the course. Mr. Jesse Sheetz and Mr. Dunkelberger directed the tenth grade in a general biology course. The curriculum included the study of plant and animal phyla, genetics, psychology, dissections, and local flora classifications. An elective advanced biology course entailing anatomy, physiology of the Insecta, Amphibia, and Mamalia classes under Mr. Sheetz and Mr. Dunkelberger was offered to juniors and seniors. Mr. Clarence Weik headed a physics course for juniors, designed to cover the structure of matter, heat, sound, electricity, and electronics. The seniors were offered a course in senior science, directed by Mr. Weik, or chemistry under Mr. Sheetz. Senior science was a review of all science covered throughout high school years, and advanced delvings into physics and chemistry. Mr. Sheetz concentrated the chemistry course on phases of inorganic and organic chemistry supplemented with laboratory work.



"Now know 'dat'!" emphasizes Mr. Manderbach.

Mr. Sheetz helps students prepare for a biology lab.

Mr. Goodling and A. Kozloff prepare the Chieftain.

Business Education

Wyomissing offered typing and shorthand under the tutelage of Mr. Goodling. Accuracy and speed were the main objectives in the required eighth grade typing course. It enabled students to complete assignments in other subjects with greater alacrity. Typing was also offered as an elective to grades nine through twelve. An elective course in shorthand I and II was also offered to students in tenth through twelfth grades.

Art

Paper sculpture, pencil drawings, pen and ink sketches, ceramics, pastel work, landscapes, and gloriously original Christmas decorations presented ample evidence of the motivation with which Mrs. Bonnie Ritter urged her students to develop to the fullest their latent creativity.

Art is compulsory in seventh and eighth grades; it is elective from ninth through twelfth. In the advanced courses the young artists work with charcoal, oils, and water colors. It is here that individuality is given fuller reign. The pupil is more able to develop his talent and discover new media for the expression of his artistic urges.

Mrs. Ritter demonstrates how to paste two pieces of paper together.

Mrs. Hill teaches music appreciation — the Beatles ? ? ?

Music

Students were again offered various ways of expressing their musical ability and potential in the Music Department supervised by Mrs. Hill. Junior High students were taught the basics of music and music appreciation. The ninth grade, junior, and senior choruses which performed at the annual Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter Programs were led superbly by Mrs. Hill. This year the band conducted by Mr. LeVan encouraged cheering during football games and pep rallies.

Home Economics

Home Economics was presented as a guide and an aid for training young women to become better homemakers. Mrs. Stover directed the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades in the study of family clothing, food for the family, child care and guidance, family health and safety, and personal, family, and community relationships. Individual projects in clothing, and group projects in food and child care, were also utilized by Mrs. Stover. An elective course was offered to senior high students who were able to choose their field of study from any of the above areas. The home economic student realized the importance of preparing herself for a future as a homemaker.

"Isn't this too much material for a bikini, Mrs. Stover?"

"Get those fingernails nice and smooth," says Mr. Shirk.

Industrial Arts

Boys in seventh through ninth grades learned not only how to use some of the tools in Industrial Arts but also what tools, methods, and materials are used extensively in United States industry. From seventh through ninth grade, the course is compulsory. Here, the boys engaged not only in laboratory projects, but also employed their time in reference work assignments. Laboratory work developed manual skill and illustrated practical applications of tools while outside reference and assignments increased their knowledge of wood types, the location of major forest areas, and the uses of wood. Ninth grade boys developed their skills in drafting. Senior high boys were offered either shop or drafting as an elective.

Driver Education

Tenth grade students learned to be capable drivers as well as to be cognizant of prevailing laws. Meeting once a week, the pupils under the instruction of Mr. Shirk, discussed practical driving problems, became acquainted with the Vehicle Code of Pennsylvania, studied text books by the American Automobile Association, and listened to outside lecturers on proper driving habits. Pamphlets, films, and accident clinics were also used to imbue further the idea of safety and caution while driving.

Mr. Pitcherello, the driving instructor, helped add many new drivers to the ranks of automobile operators by providing on-the-spot driving instruction.

"OK, where's my answer book?"

Mr. Gottshall and Mr. Allison instruct L. Scroble on the use of a discus.

Physical Education

A sound body to go with an alert mind was the objective for the physical education department. Senior high boys were under the supervision of Mr. Donald Gottshall, junior high boys were under Mr. Bernard Allison, and girls were under Mrs. Glenn Linderman. Boys' classes consisted of such things as: touch football, cross country, and soccer in the fall; tumbling, basketball, gymnastics, and volleyball in the winter; and track and softball in the spring. Girls' activities included: field hockey and hit-pin baseball in the fall; basketball, tumbling, and gymnastics in the winter; and volleyball and some outdoor field events in the spring.

Hygiene

Mrs. Stover and Mr. Dunkelberger taught both seventh grade boys and girls in the basic study of physiology. Mrs. Linderman instructed the eleventh grade girls' hygiene course in anatomy, physiology, social hygiene, and mental health. Mr. Allison instructed his students in the social and communicable diseases.

This course taught not only the basic habits but also gave students a better understanding of body functions, adaptions to environment, and aided them in solving many teenage problems.

"Whenever in doubt, always turn to the Readers' Guide," suggests Mrs. Heffner.

Library

The library performed its indispensable task of providing the students with necessary and interesting literature. Mrs. Heffner supervised this important center of academic activities. Student members of the Library Club frequently manned the operation of the checking out of books. The library contained a varied selection of novels, reference books, periodicals, and pamphlets which provided information and enjoyment. It was open to quiet study periods. Mrs. Heffner instructed the seventh graders in the study of the correct use of the Dewey Decimal System and the library's facilities.

Cafeteria

The high school cafeteria was managed by Mr. Arnold, chef, and Miss Nace, Mrs. Feger, Mrs. Rutt, along with numerous other helpers. The students were offered the choice of two appetizing platters along with salads and desserts every day. A platter with milk cost a student thirty-five cents. The Student Council with the cooperation of students and teachers attempted to make the cafeteria an enjoyable and pleasant place in which to eat. Monitors were directed to lead students to the cafeteria, and to supervise the attempt to maintain quieter and cleaner conditions. Records were played during the lunchtime.

Too many cooks spoil the broth.

Mr. Lueken wonders how many jars he can save by the end of the year.

Custodians

Mr. John Lueken, with his custodial crew, tackled the never-ending job of maintaining the school and its grounds. Mr. Charles Stoner and Mr. Paul Young were charged with the maintenance of the campus with its beautiful lawns and shrubbery. In order to preserve the pleasant and clean atmosphere throughout the classrooms, halls, and cafeteria, Mr. Lueken worked along with Mr. George Angstadt and Mr. William Eckert. The custodial crew managed to do an excellent job in caring for the school campus.

Medical Staff

The medical staff served the students' welfare by offering a complete program of health check-ups. The school nurse, Mrs. Annie Knappenberger, was prepared for anyone who became ill. She also administered sight and hearing tests as well as taking each student's height and weight. Dental inspections were offered to all students by Dr. Dougherty while Dr. Woodring gave physical examinations to all cheerleaders and athletes. Mantoux tests for tuberculosis, as well as the new oral polio vaccine, were received by all students.

"What test group are you in, John?" questions Dr. Dougherty.

OFFICERS
M. McShane, vice-president; M. Porch, secretary;
R. Alley, treasurer; V. Pettis, president.

President Valerie Pettis and Miss Brunner, the adviser, administered the Student Council of Wyomissing Area Schools successfully this year, while effecting numerous changes.

Preceding each weekly co-operative meeting on Tuesday morning, Valerie and her officers listened patiently and attentively to every student who voiced either a picayune complaint or a substantial suggestion. As a result, various new committees and sub-organizations arose. These workers helped to inaugurate the school store, the Foreign Student Committee, and the student directory. Other duties consisted of decorating the walls with holly at Christmas time, orienting the seventh grade in September, and operating the concession stand at one of the football games.

Not only did the Co-operative serve the student body well, but also it conducted service projects outside the confines of the school. The District Council Conference, held last December at Reading High School, also provided the membership with fresh ideas.

The student council remained an active, prosperous organization mainly because of the students' and faculty's enthusiasm, participation, and co-operation. The spring election elicited grand and colorful campaign procedures, including numerous posters, campaign plays, and forceful speeches prepared by respective campaign managers.

Because of increased school population and the physical division of the student body into junior and senior high school levels, it was advisable to have separate student councils. Therefore, beginning next September, Peter Schmidt will preside over the senior group, and Robert Golden will head the junior division.

OFFICERS—G. Henninger, treasurer; A. Kozloff, 2nd vice-president; N. Duncan and J. Schaumberg, Fellowship House; B. Meharg, vice-president; M. Angstadt, president; J. Coulton, secretary.

Y-Teens, the senior high school service and social organization for girls, is a division of the Young Women's Christian Association. Throughout the year this club rendered outstanding service to the community and the school.

An extensive program of activities began with the UNICEF drive on Halloween. The money collected was distributed by the United Nations to needy children throughout the world. Providing canned goods for the Salvation Army and assisting under-privileged children at the Fellowship House were other service projects.

Y-Teens collaborated with the Hi-Y Club to present the gala Inter-Club Dance in November. Other social functions included: a hayride, the Mother-Daughter Social, a fashion show, and a formal banquet for club members.

Advised by Mrs. Stover, the club was led by: president, Marilyn Angstadt; vice-president, Missy Meharg; second vice-president, Arielle Kozloff; secretary, Jan Coulton; treasurer, Gretchen Henninger; Fellowship House, Jean Schaumburg and Nancy Duncan; and chaplain, Alice Coblentz.

Hi-Y

OFFICERS—Secretary, Jeff Roller; president, Richard Purselle; senior delegate, Kent Hollinger; chaplain, James Bower; treasurer, Roy Farrell; junior delegate, James Fegley; vice-president, Peter Mohn.

Wyomissing Hi-Y strives to maintain high morals, develop fine character, engender a love for service to others, and foster fellowship and respect not only for the members of the organization but also toward mankind in general. The club has attempted to carry out these principles through different social and academic endeavors and service projects proposed by its cabinet and Mr. Jesse Sheetz, its faculty supervisor.

The Hi-Y opened its fall program with the initiation of its new members and an orientation regarding the opportunities and purposes of the Club. Following the initial meeting, the organization was in high gear with full student cooperation and participation at each meeting.

One of the Hi-Y's yearly money-making projects was the fall and spring paper drive where almost all of the members scanned Wyomissing and environs to gather and stack old newspapers. From the proceeds $100 goes to a fund to provide the annual scholarship for the highest scoring senior in a qualifying examination.

Aside from these various individual activities, Hi-Y occasionally collaborated with the Y-Teens for many enjoyable endeavors: Inter-Club, Hoagie Night, Sports Night, and Movie Night.

Hi-Y-Teen Service Award

Each year the Hi-Y and Y-Teens clubs sponsor the Hi-Y-Teen Service Award. The sophomore and junior members of the respective organizations elect the senior boy and girl who contributed the most to the club, school, and community during the 1963-1964 school year. The recipients were chosen on the basis of their superior character, leadership, citizenship, school spirit, and academic achievement. All around development was more important than individual prowess in a few of these categories.

This year Marilyn Angstadt and Roy Farrell were deemed worthy of this honor.

FIRST ROW—P. Pingel, C. Lorah, B. Meharg, C. Smith, M. Porch, J. Bertolet, T. Frost. SECOND ROW—B. Anderson, A. Kozloff, V. Pettis, G. Henninger, J. Keeler, M. Agnew, E. Coblentz. THIRD ROW—Dr. Shafer, R. Bruce, R. Farrell, J. Fegley, C. Longenecker, J. Keller, B. Shafer, D. Spang.

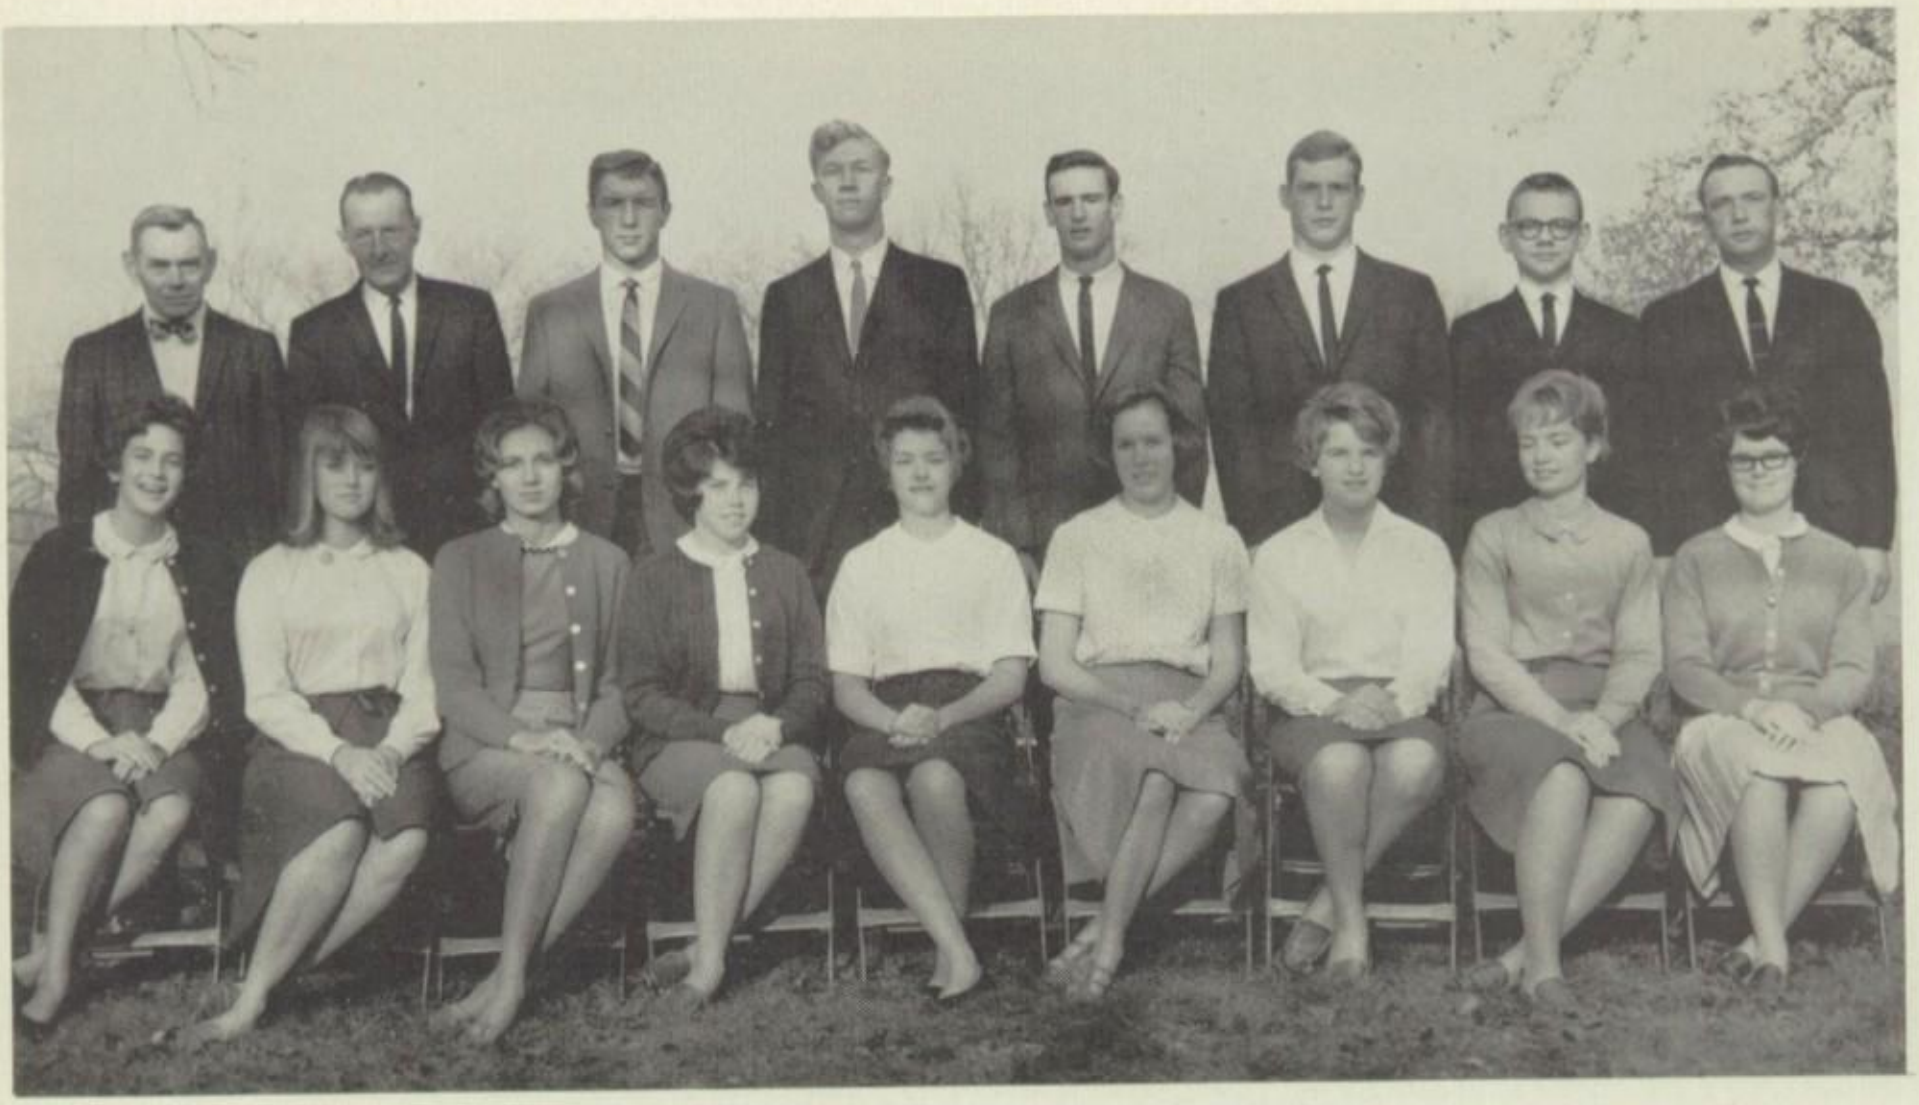
National Honor Society

Anticipation and anxiety molded the expressions of every junior and senior face as Dr. Shafer announced the newly elected members to the National Honor Society, a nation-wide organization. The results were based on the faculty's evaluation of the candidate's scholastic accomplishments and personal service to the school.

The March issue of the Chieftain revealed the junior members of the honorary society: Bonnie Anderson, Judith Bertolet, Elizabeth Coblentz, James Fegley, Teresa Frost, Arielle Kozloff, Carol Lorah, Patricia Pingel, and David Spang. In addition to those chosen last year several seniors were newly admitted: Robert Bruce, Roy Farrell, John Keller, and Chester Longenecker. Those selected last year included: Mary Agnew, Gretchen Henninger, Jane Keeler, Beryl Meharg, Valerie Pettis, Byron Shafer, Marian Porch, and Catherine Smith.

According to the guidance office, membership in the National Honor Society is a definite asset to the student applying for college admissions, particularly during the present hectic scramble for placement. Wyomissing's National Honor members, then, have a leg-up on the acceptance list.

Dr. Shafer congratulates new members J. Keller, R. Farrell, R. Bruce, and C. Longenecker upon their acceptance into the National Honor Society.



FIRST ROW—R. Busch, J. Woodring, P. Peters, J. Keeler, M. Agnew, B. Meharg, M. Porch, C. Smith, G. Henninger.

SECOND ROW—Mr. Shirk, Mr. Milford, J. Hayes, B. Shafer, P. Post, R. Boekenkroeger, J. Butler, Mr. Goodling.

Colophon

M. Agnew, B. Meharg, and R. Busch examine Colophon pictures.

Again this year the Colophon staff worked diligently toward the completion of the school's yearbook with the indispensable supervision and advice of their advisers: Mr. Russell Milford, Mr. Charles Goodling, and Mr. D. C. Shirk.

The senior staff, chosen in the spring of 1963, undertook the rituals of production: fund-raising, dummy-making, picture-snapping, cover-choosing, and finally the printing. They included: Byron Shafer, editor; Marian Porch, assistant editor; Gretchen Henninger, treasurer; Jane Keeler, business manager; Missy Meharg and Russell Boekenkroeger, activities; Marshia Walborn and Peter Post, seniors; Cathy Smith and Roger Alley, academics; Mary Agnew, underclassmen; Becky Busch and Jeff Hayes, sports; Peggie Peters, Tina Stutzman, and Nancy Stewart, typing; and Jim Butler, photography.

Even as this edition is going to press, the juniors are working on the dummy copy for the 1965 publication.

The weeks of picture-taking and supervision ended successfully to meet the proposed deadline of the printer. In June, students gathered with their rumpled coupons to receive their long-awaited edition of a lasting memory, the Colophon.

Friedmann, Mr. Goodling, E. Shafer, R. Farrell, T. Willson.

Chieftain

Chieftain, the school newspaper, in its eighth year of publication, was supervised by Mrs. Houck and Mr. Goodling. Sandy Derr, the editor-in-chief, was ably assisted by the other officers, Bonnie Anderson, the assistant editor, and Ruhl Heffner, the business manager.

With the advent of the new year, the Chieftain began its annual subscription drive. Excellent student participation created a surplus in the treasury. With the added expense money, the staff devised a new format providing for better news coverage and more pictures. Other money-making projects throughout the year were a concession stand at the Jenkintown football game and a Sock-Hop on April 11.

Each issue of the Chieftain contained important school happenings, sport news, club activities, cartoons, and thumbnail sketches of the Seniors-of-the-Month. A new column entitled Mad Anthony was added this year. It supplied students with amusing gossip and anecdotes.

Aiding the officers were these sub-editors: Cathy Smith, news; Roy Farrell and Beverly Sheetz, sports; Betsy Coblentz, clubs; Arielle Kozloff, features; Alexandria Tomalonis, literary; Missy Meharg, typing; and Susan Meinig, publicity.

B. Anderson, S. Derr, and A. Kozloff pound out copy for the Chieftain.

Junior Town Meeting

OFFICERS—J. Hayes, president; G. Henninger, vice-president; P. Post, treasurer; M. Agnew, secretary.

Junior Town Meeting is an organization of seniors and eligible juniors. The third Monday of every school month is the usual meeting date. Appointed panels debate the pros and cons of controversial issues on local, national, and international levels. Afterwards, the general meeting engages in lively criticism and individual comment.

The topics themselves varied greatly, for they were the combined selections of the cabinet and Mrs. Nancy Hinchey, the adviser. The opening meeting was one of the most informative and brilliant. While Wayne Rosenberger and Pete Post upheld the principles and the platform of conservatism and Barry Goldwater, Byron Shafer and Garrett Stevens analyzed and constructively criticized these same precepts. The conferences that followed proved equally as interesting. Catholicity of subject matter ranged from disarmament and capital punishment to birth control and socialized medicine.

This year's cabinet consisted of the following seniors: Jeffrey Hayes, president; Gretchen Henninger, vice-president; Mary Agnew, secretary; and Peter Post, treasurer.

Sembower Oratorical Contest

The annual Sembower Oratorical Contest was presented on February 20 in the auditorium. This affair is held as a memorial to Guy Knowlton Sembower, a member of the class of 1931, who died of pneumonia while attending Wyomissing High School. Four contestants entered this year's contest. They prepared speeches of about fifteen hundred words in length requiring approximately ten minutes to deliver. The speakers and their subjects were: Thomas Klein, Reminiscing about Haiti and Germany; Marilyn Rogers, Brother; Arielle Kozloff, Sword in the Stone; John Keller, Safety and Essential Liberty. The speeches were judged on oratorical delivery, content, literary style, and originality. Jane Keeler, the mistress of ceremonies, presented the prizes to the winners. These were selected by Mrs. Knipe, Mr. Boehm, and Mrs. Juhlin. First award of five dollars went to Arielle Kozloff, second place of three dollars was awarded to Marilyn Rogers, and third prize of two dollars was presented to John Keller. Mr. Milford was the sponsor of the contest.

The Sembower Oratorical Contest while serving as a lasting memorial to a former student, gave the participants invaluable experience in public speaking.

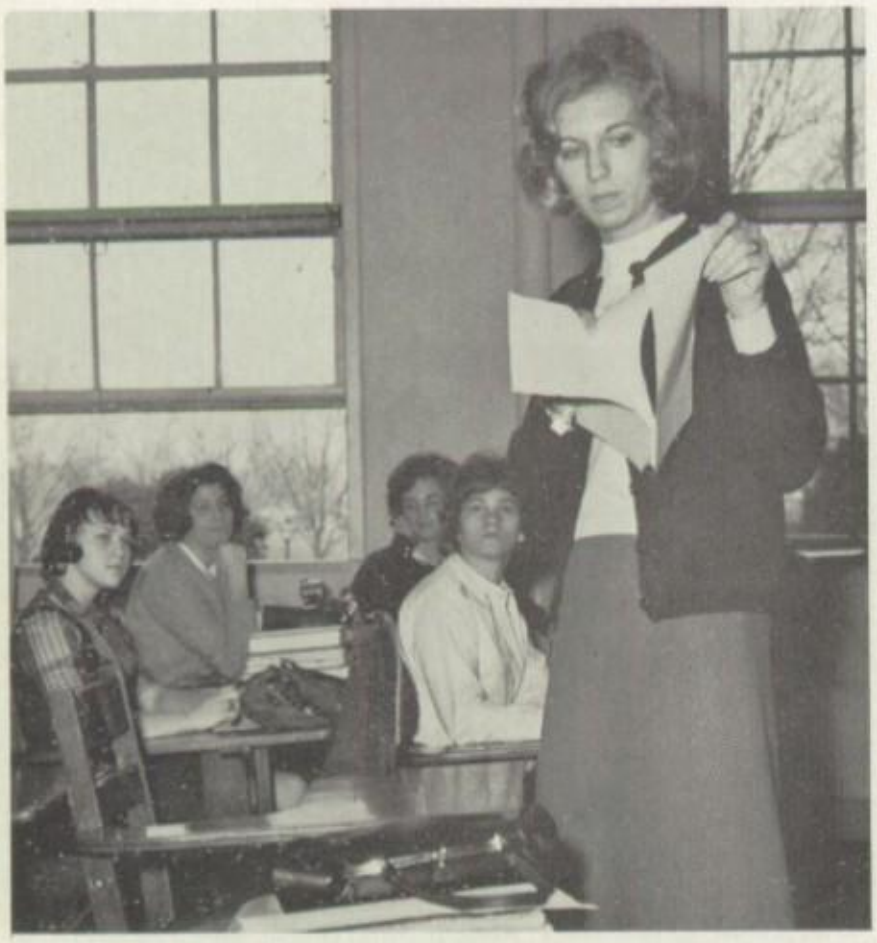
Future Teachers of America



Big boss P. Peters gives instructions to F.T.A. members.

The Future Teachers of America remained an active organization this year as it endeavored to introduce varied facts of the teaching profession to junior and senior students. Many of the members received actual experience teaching and observing in classes at the Wyomissing Elementary School.

School activities were diversified this year. Early in the season, Miss Emalyn R. Weiss, supervisor of special education, lectured the membership on the problems encountered in her particular field. This was followed by a dinner at a mid-city restaurant. The next month Mr. Reitz, guidance counselor, spoke about college opportunities. In the spring of the year, the F.T.A. visited the Reading School District's Special Education Center where each girl viewed methods in handling mentally and physically handicapped children.

Under the supervision of the club's adviser, Miss Brunner, the following officers managed a prosperous and educational year: Peggie Peters, president; Betsy Coblentz, vice-president; Carol Lorah, secretary; and Nancy Stewart, treasurer.

Future Nurses of America

This year President Jean Schaumburg presided over an enlightened and enlarged club. The members listened to speakers and viewed movies in various fields of the medical profession.

This year the armed forces waged an intensive campaign to interest the girls in the opportunities offered in various fields of enlisted service. It was pointed out that such a career would be a satisfactory alternative to attending college.

Held in the gymnasium, a Sock Hop, the club's principal money-making project, highlighted the Future Nurses' season. Profits from the dance were used to buy appropriate materials to decorate the Children's Ward of Community General Hospital. In addition, the girls rolled bandages for the Reading Hospital, visited various local hospitals, and assisted the medical staff in performing the Mantoux tests for tuberculosis.

As adviser and school nurse, Mrs. Knappenberger served as an assistant to the girls in carrying out their projects. Besides the president, the officers included: Nancy Duncan, vice-president; Susan Reber, secretary; and Sandy Derr, treasurer.

Spanish Club

K. Hollinger takes a breezy swing at the pinata.

Once again the Spanish Club was organized in order to offer increased opportunities for efficiency in this language. The belief that an individual learns more outside of the classroom certainly was evident in this organization. The club provided relaxation as well as increased knowledge of Spanish literature and games.

The breaking of the Pinata high-lighted the annual Christmas party. The Pinata, shaped in the face of Santa Claus with crepe paper and paint, was generously filled with a various assortment of nuts, candies, and novelty gifts. Before the party, each member secretly chose another member's name and proceeded to buy him an inexpensive gift to be exchanged at the fiesta. Later in the year, the Spanish Club held a treasure hunt and a lavish Spanish dinner. Every member participated in the club's events, either in a panel or as a Santa Claus at the Christmas party.

"Diego" Longenecker presided over this year's language club. Other officers included: Donald Robitzer, vice-president; Ginny Glosser, secretary; and Michael Keener, treasurer.

FIRST ROW—S. Derr, S. Davies, L. Davis, E. Coblentz, C. Parsons, E. Kreisinger, S. Ingham, M. Rogers, A. Kozloff.

French Club

Consisting of eleventh and twelfth grade French students, this year's French Club terminated its school program successfully, largely because the committee had planned social and literary events for each monthly meeting.

After its initial get-together, Missy Meharg, president, helped to organize the forthcoming activities. Over the Christmas holidays thirteen of the Club members celebrated before a fire singing French carols and eating the traditional butter cakeroll, Buche de Noel. Later, in January, everyone traipsed from house to house for a lavish progressive dinner, a gourmet's delight. Both the boys and the girls enjoyed the French scrabble game, in addition to the movies and the lectures. Possibly one of the most entertaining items on the program was the informal grouping of French-singing students who emulated the popular folk-singers of the day. Their caterwauling was under the aegis of Byron Shafer and his guitar.

Besides Missy Meharg, Betsy Coblentz served as vice-president. Jim Fegley, the treasurer, managed the French Club's "extravagant" expenses while Becky Busch called the roll and encouraged group participation.

Byron Shafer, the famous folk singer, leads French Club members in the singing of "Blowin In The Wind."

P.A. ANNOUNCERS—J. Keller, C. Lorah, A. Kozloff, M. Angstadt, B. Shafer.

Service Force

Arielle Kozloff reads the morning announcements.

The public address system is manned by a group of students who have been selected for the job through a series of elimination tryouts conducted in the fall by the co-operative. Since the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has banned Bible reading in the public schools, the announcers now carry the responsibility of reading daily inspirational passages from selected literary experts. Routine announcements concerning meetings, assemblies, messages from the administration, and changes in the daily agenda are also broadcast to the various homerooms. These announcements are sent out during the morning and afternoon homeroom periods.

Another active group consisted of senior and junior girls who faithfully "bird-dogged" the spectators at home football games to buy tickets.

When the alarm sounded, alert members of the fire platoon rushed to their designated stations. These boys were responsible for the safe evacuation of all students.

Home basketball games were monitored by senior volunteers who policed the gymnasium, sold tickets, and manned the entrances.

The flag raisers contributed their bit to school service.

Debate Team

Under the guidance of Mr. Gebensleben, the debate team was formed again this year. Wyomissing along with Governor Mifflin and Wilson High Schools formed the county panel discussion group. In the month of April this select aggregation presented debates at the member schools.

The arguments consisted of original talks based on each speaker's opinions. The conflicting parties were then divided into pro and con discussion groups. A lively inter-panel verbal war ensued. A spokesman for each team then gave a short summary of his side.

The topics for this year's debates included the very controversial civil rights issue and the Johnson administration-sponsored Medicare program.

Mark Scheneman, Marilyn Rogers, James Butler, Robert Kauffman, and Pauline Nagle were the members of this year's debate team.

As in past years the method of conducting such meetings is now more or less standard. First of all no decision is given in favor of either side. Thus, the practice deviates from regular debate procedure. Second, the audience is invited to engage in a question-answer period with the panel members at the conclusion of the formal presentations.

"And furthermore . . . . " M. Scheneman makes a point in a debate.

Band

The band performs "Hail To The Varsity" at a pep rally.

The Wyomissing High School Band has become increasingly popular under the direction of Mr. William Levan. This year its membership grew to its highest level. The revitalization in interest was due mainly to Mr. Levan's diverse program. He has created bands at both the Wyomissing and Wyomissing Hills Grade Schools. With an organization such as this, the band will continue to grow in size.

Throughout the year the band entertained spectators and students at the home football games, pep-rallies, and assemblies. The band polished its ability through many hours of concentrated practice. Practice sessions were held from 7:30 to 8:20 every Thursday and Friday morning. Byron Shafer served as the student conductor in Mr. Levan's absence.

On April 29, the band rendered its outstanding performance at the annual Night of Music. Classical, popular, and jazz tunes were played.

The officers, Byron Shafer, president, along with Wayne Rosenberger, vice-president, and Barry Weitzel, secretary-treasurer, assisted Mr. Levan in making the 1964 band one of the finest in the history of Wyomissing High School.

Chorus

Membership in the chorus was open to any student in the high school. Because of the large turnout of participants, three choral groups were formed. These were the senior high school chorus, the ninth grade girls chorus, and the junior high school chorus. The primary aim of the choruses was to provide enjoyable programs for Christmas, Easter, and Thanksgiving assemblies. In December both the senior and grade school groups presented a Night of Music festival in the auditorium. The traditional candlelight processional climaxed a rewarding evening. In March the senior high singers provided a program of religious as well as secular music.

Mrs. Norman Hill, music director, held practice sessions every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon. When they were not preparing for the special programs, the members sang songs of their own choosing. Several girls gained recognition for their singing ability. Selected for the Eastern Pennsylvania District Chorus were Susan Patton and Sharon Dundore. On the local level several made the county chorus group. They were: Andy Nagle, Wayne Kauffman, Sharon Dundore, Beth Spang, Susan Reber, Susan Patton, Virginia Boekenkroeger, Myra Farrell, Janice Thomas, Mike Reinsel, Andy Maier, and Bryne Brossman.

Foreign Student Committee

The Foreign Student Committee was established at Wyomissing High School this year. Its purpose was to create and maintain a cordial relationship between high school students and exchange students.

In September, when Ashok Guruswamy arrived, the committee held an elaborate dinner to welcome him. After this, the committee presented Ashok to the high school at an assembly. Ashok came here under the auspices of the American Field Service. In January an assembly was staged to sell shares in this organization. This was done in order that a student like Ashok could come here next year. Jane Keeler, chairman of the committee, was in charge of the assembly. Upon the arrival of Marlene Penaherrera Paredes and Norma Bueno Cifuentes in February a welcome assembly was also held. These two girls came here from Equador under the auspices of the American Fellowship program. Committee members made it their duty to see that these exchange students enjoyed every minute of their visit here. All problems pertaining to the foreign students were handled through this committee. The work done by the Foreign Student Committee helped, in a small way, to bring understanding between nations of the world. Mrs. Knipe served as adviser to the group.

Monitors

Monitors R. Farrell and D. Procter watch as T. Fink motions lunch line to go.

During the four lunch periods, the monitors tried to maintain order and eliminate confusion. Early in the year the administration revamped the monitor system. The increasing number of students prompted this action. Mr. Brubaker, supervisor, selected a group of senior high school boys and girls to carry the plan into execution. Under the new plan, teachers led their classes to the cafeteria. There, the monitors took over. They directed traffic, making sure the lunch line kept moving in an orderly fashion. Later during the period the monitors patrolled the cafeteria in order to keep school citizenship on a high level.

Also new this year was the hall monitor system. The hall monitors, stationed throughout the school, alleviated noise and confusion in the corridors during the lunch periods. Terry Fink, Roger Alley, James Fegley, and Peter Patton were the head monitors of each of the respective lunch periods.

Miss Brunner was in charge of junior high school students who were campus monitors. They discouraged students from littering the grounds with refuse.

Stage Crew

The stage crew was the dynamics behind all student and professional productions held in the high school auditorium. Members gave freely of their time, energy, and talent. All the scenery used in stage productions was handled by these boys. When it was necessary, the crew had to build new scenery. The Thanksgiving assembly, Christmas pageant, Easter program, and Commencement exercises were the main projects on their agenda. They had to coordinate the proper procedure of events with the participants of these productions. Many tedious rehearsals produced a smooth-running final production. In February, members of the crew held a dance, the Prop Hop. The funds raised were used to buy new sandbags, paint brushes, and other stage implements. Barry Weitzel, president of the stage crew, demanded yeoman duty from John Keller, David Procter, Robert Esterbrook, George Eves, Larry Weber, Dale Fallon, Robert Kauffman, and Chester Longenecker. These older boys passed on their experiences in stage work to the younger members of the crew. This assured Wyomissing High School that it would have an efficient crew for years to come. Mr. Goodling was the adviser.

Directors Club

Club members exchange gifts at their Christmas soiree.

Enthusiasm for a successful dramatic organization was so great this year that it became necessary to separate junior and senior high members into individual clubs.

The senior high division, under the leadership of Marilyn Angstadt, planned on May 11, an evening of music and drama in collaboration with the orchestra. Mrs. Watson, the former adviser, instructed the members in correct stage movement and voice. The most fascinating part of their studies included the art of pantomime. However, Mrs. Dorothy Hill who served as the adviser in the latter part of the year, helped the club produce their only production, a double featured performance of the plays, Little Prison, and Lord Byron's Love Letter. The former by George Milton Savage is a farce concerning the predicament of a group of women trapped in an elevator. The latter is a serious drama by Tennessee Williams set in New Orleans at Mardi Gras time.

In addition to President Marilyn Angstadt, other officers included Judy Bertolet, vice-president, and Pat Pingle, secretary-treasurer.

Library Club

As an indispensable aid to librarian Mrs. Ruhl Heffner, the Library Club, fundamentally a service club organization comprised of girls from the ninth to twelfth grades, managed the varied chores of a school library. Their tasks included checking out books, arranging displays both inside the library and on the bulletin boards in the halls, and assisting their fellow students in locating reference materials.

There were, however, opportunities for entertainment. The teachers' tea provided added enjoyment for both members and faculty. The outstanding event of the year was the annual Teenage Library Association Conference which was held this year at Bangor High School.

The Cabinet again sponsored the paperback book fair in the fall of the year. The entire student body was allowed time to browse around, ask questions, and purchase books.

Senior Foreign Relations

OFFICERS—E. Spang, secretary-treasurer; J. Butler, president; E. Coblentz, vice-president.

The Senior Foreign Relations Club gave interested political science students in the senior high school the opportunity to learn more about foreign countries and their customs, United States foreign policy, and the structure of the United Nations.

In November the year's activities got under way with the annual Model United Nations General Assembly staged at Albright College. Students served as delegates for several of the nations represented there. Current topics such as the admission of Red China to the U. N. and the Congo situation were discussed. The field trip to Washington, D. C., was the highlight of the year's activities. While there, members observed the House and Senate in action. The Lincoln Memorial, the Smithsonian Institute, and many other landmarks were also visited. Club members then paid homage to former President John F. Kennedy at Arlington National Cemetery. Several club members also served on the Inter-County panel discussion group.

This year's officers were: president, James Butler; vice-president, Elizabeth Coblentz; secretary-treasurer, Beth Spang. Mr. Reitz and Mrs. Hinchey served as advisers.

FIRST ROW—D. Campbell, S. Kains, M. Schlegel, R. Breiner, A. Miller, D. Renken, R. Golden, W. Boynton, B. Bower, D. Spang, V. Buzby. SECOND ROW—K. White, B. Riley, M. Trexler, M. Atkinson, D. Junior Foreign Relations

The increased school population this year made necessary the division of the Foreign Relations Club into two groups. One, the Senior Foreign Relations Club, was for senior high students. The other, the Junior Foreign Relations Club, had its membership open to junior high school students. The main purpose of this division was to brief its members in the essentials of foreign policy, world history, and domestic problems. This proved highly beneficial to those who intend to join the Senior Foreign Relations Club next year.

A guest speaker from the Peace Corps spoke on its structure and purpose. He gave a rundown on Malaysia where he was stationed. A question and answer period ended the talk. The students were afforded not only a first hand account of the Peace Corps, but also an American's personal reactions to Malaysia. Other speakers presented talks to the club throughout the year to instill an interest in foreign affairs.

The officers consisted of: president, Tom Breitinger; vice-president, Myra Farrell; secretary-treasurer, Bob Golden. Mr. Noll was the adviser.

OFFICERS—R. Golden, secretary-treasurer; M. Farrell, vice-president; T. Breitinger, president.

Blue Triangle

L. Koch, J. Thomas, N. Parker, and B. Riley pack clothes for Bundle Days.

Blue Triangle, the junior high school counterpart of Y-Teens, is the service organization for the eighth and ninth grade girls. The cabinet of Diana Scully, president; Betsy Riley, vice-president; Karen Smith, secretary; and Linda Berry, treasurer, provided the club with an interesting roster of activities. Club members were able to serve the school, community, nation, and themselves while at the same time creating fellowship.

The year's activities began with a scavenger hunt. Club members were sent to scour the borough for many rare objects. In December, the Bundle Days collection of clothes was held. Students in both junior and senior high school contributed. The items were then packed and shipped to children in the depressed areas of Tennessee. This was the major service project. Over the Christmas vacation the club serenaded families throughout the community with joyful Christmas carols. On February 22, a dance was held for the junior high students in the cafeteria. The annual banquet concluded another successful year. Mrs. Schrack served as the adviser.

Junior Hi-Y

Boys in the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades were qualified for membership in the Junior Hi-Y Club. The Junior Hi-Y is the junior high school equivalent of the Hi-Y Club. The motto of "Clean speech, clean sportsmanship, clean scholarship, and clean living," was the principle on which the club operated.

Mr. Weik, the faculty adviser, directed one of the most active clubs in years. The group had four money-making projects. These included two dances and two scrap drives. Some of the money raised was used to buy a microphone for the school auditorium. This donation was the club's service project for the year.

Most of the club members were sports enthusiasts. Therefore, most of the activities centered around sports events. The boys journeyed to Philadelphia to see the Eagles grapple with the Vikings in football. After this they went to Hershey to see the Bears tangle with Baltimore in ice hockey. In February, the annual sports night was held. Spring activities included the Penn Relays and a trip to the Philadelphia Naval Base. Serving as officers for the year were: Steve Woodward, president; Andy Maier, vice-president; Craig Stewart, secretary; Tom Breitinger, treasurer; and Eric Shafer, chaplain.

Junior-Senior Prom

G. Stevens, S. Davies, B. Curry, and R. Berry plan the refreshments for the prom.

R. Purselle and V. Glosser prepare to leave for the big night.

On May 23, the annual Junior-Senior Prom was held at the Reading Motor Lodge. The junior class sponsored the affair. They chose a spring theme for the dance. Saxie Schollenberger and his orchestra were engaged to provide the musical entertainment. The extravagant decorations and soft music created a mood that enthralled all who attended the dance.

Ralph Berry, president of the junior class, organized a committee consisting of: Barbara Curry, publicity; Morris Kreitz and James Fegley, decorations; Susan Davies, table decorations; James Bower, tickets; Sandra Derr, invitations; Jan Coulton, refreshments; Garrett Stevens, clean-up; Midge McShane, programs. Mr. Brubaker and Mr. Costenbader served as advisers.

With the exceptionally decorative theme of "Through the Looking Glass", couples in the ninth through twelfth grade enjoyed a November evening at the Hi-Y and Y-Teen semi-formal dance held in the activities room of the Wyomissing Elementary School.

Co-Chairmen Roger Alley and Gretchen Henninger chose several committees to facilitate the matters of refreshments, music, decorations, and tickets. Thus, the result was a forest fantasy envisioned by Alice in Wonderland.

The most outstanding feature of the dance was the mural designed and painted by members of the junior class. This year, in keeping with the theme, the mural represented Alice wandering through the enchanted forest.

Football

J. Hayes and Mr. G. argue about the next play.

The Warriors, with four starters and thirteen lettermen returning, began pre-season workouts on August 20. Expecting a rewarding season, the players, led by Russell Boekenkroeger and Bill Houck, trudged through three weeks of agony on the now infamous "South Forty." But because of early injuries and the necessity of grooming underclassmen for the starting positions, the mentor of the Blue and White, Mr. Charles Gebensleben, expressed pessimism concerning the ensuing season.

This anxiety was augmented by the loss of Barry Keller and Bill Houck for indefinite periods. The rest of the Warrior backfield, made up of Dick Purselle, Jeff Hayes, and Pete Post, suffered injuries that kept them from consistent play.

But while operating at full strength, the Warriors bested West Reading 7-6, in the "Battle of the Boroughs." This was the last time the team functioned at peak efficiency. Through the remaining season the Wyomissing gridders suffered five setbacks against two more victories.

In the opening game the Wyomissing eleven outlasted their arch rivals, West Reading, 7-6. Playing on neutral turf, the Warriors scored on an eighty-yard punt return, and the Cowboys, on a six-yard pass.

Journeying to Fort Washington, the Blue and White clashed head-long with Upper Dublin. Hard running and excellent line play led the Cardinals to a 27-7 verdict. Wyomissing's only scoring came on an aerial of forty yards.

The following Saturday, apparent revenge turned into calamity as Schwenksville stunned the Warriors 7-0. Wyomissing operated well between the twenty-yard lines but could not generate enough steam when it got close. A "scoring bomb" and conversion told the shocking story.

Next in line was Pottsgrove. The loss of Bill Houck and Barry Keller enabled the Falcons to turn back the Berks gridders 21-0. Two fine runs and a long aerial provided the scoring. Wyomissing's only scoring threat was halted at the Falcon eighteen-yard line. The Warrior offense, lacking a guard and a fullback, was thwarted at every turn.

The fifth game brought Lower Moreland to Wyomissing. Although completely dismayed over their previous performances, the Warriors somehow came to life and battered the Lions 25-6. The starters marched to four touchdowns before being replaced by underclassmen. Moreland skirted the Warrior replacements in the final period for their only score.

Again, at home, the Big Blue thumped Jenkintown 7-6. Wyomissing, plagued by penalties and missed assignments, had one TD called back and another stopped inside the twenty. The one point deficit was provided by a seventeen-yard conversion by Pete Schmidt.

Feeling slightly better about their 3-3 record, the Wyomissing gridders traveled to Exeter. Three quick tallies by both teams left the score 21-20 Wyomissing, at half. A fourth quarter TD for Exeter left the results 27-21 at the gun.

In the final game, the Blue and White lost to Daniel Boone 19-14. An eighty-yard run and a fifty-yard pass electrified the crowd while providing the Warriors' total. The Blazers scored on two line plunges and an aerial. This defeat brought the Wyomissing grid log to three wins against five losses.

Varsity Basketball

This season's varsity basketball squad, coached by Mr. Aubrey, was one of the youngest ever to represent the Blue and White of Wyomissing High School. After two weeks of pre-season workouts and scrimmages, the coach cut the team to eleven men. The only seniors selected were Kenny Rose and Ashok Guruswamy. Ashok, Wyomissing's foreign exchange student, although quite new at the game, made fine progress throughout the season. The juniors selected were: Peter Schmidt, James Fegley, Linton Moyer, Jay Zalewski, Garrett Stevens, Ralph Berry and Peter Mohn. The remainder of the squad was comprised of Tom Bausher and Bruce Newton, sophomores. Tom Bausher, brought up to the varsity from the junior varsity, provided an extra stimulus to an injury-ridden team.

The brightest spot during the regular season was a one point victory over arch rival West Reading. Tied at the end of regulation play, an overtime period gave the verdict to Wyomissing.

The Warriors, lacking experience but not a competitive spirit or the desire to play, compiled an overall record of six wins and sixteen losses. Although not impressive on paper, this record should provide the needed experience for a winning team next year.

Under the guidance of Mr. Jesse Sheetz, the junior varsity basketball team was one of the best Wyomissing has seen in several years. Led by co-captains Bill Schlegel and David Ahner, the squad put forth the essential effort to place themselves third in the Western Division competition.

After several weeks of practice, the team, consisting of one junior, nine sophomores, and five freshmen, was well prepared for the hard season ahead. The boys lost only to Muhlenberg, Wilson, and West Reading. However, in the latter part of the season, the team, exhibiting their full potential, came back to stun the Cowboys 72-37. This same competence and competitive spirit carried the JV's to their overall 16-5 record.

Jim Bower, Bill Schlegel, David Ahner, John Bechtel, and Buddy Scholar held the starting positions. The reserves, contributing to the team's success, were: Pete Miller, Mike Homcha, Phil Smith, Andy Maier, Mike Reinsel, Pete Bausher, Craig Stewart, Pete Mogel, Randy Bertolette, and Donny Wilson.

Prospects for the future are promising. Next year, the talent and spirit burgeoning from the junior varsity squad will spur both the basketball teams on to victory.

Cheerleaders

The varsity cheerleaders demonstrate "togetherness."

The varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders did their part to encourage sportsmanship and team spirit during the 1963-1964 season.

Fall began a busy year for the enthusiastic girls. The goal posts were decorated for home football games. New uniforms were purchased for the varsity cheerleading squad.

Basketball season found the cheerleaders no less active. A dance routine, originated by the girls, sparked up the beginning of basketball games. Captain Becky Busch, Susan Benkert, Fran Fister, Jane Keeler, Sheila Sutton, Marshia Walborn, Betsey Wiest, and Sandra Woolston formed the varsity squads.

The junior varsity basketball squad was comprised of: Captain Wendy Hayes, Jean Acheson, Susan Berry, Carol Boyer, Ginny Boekenkroeger, Jill Brossman, and Sandra Stump. Each girl did her part to lead the junior varsity team on to victory. The season was rewarding for the girls involved.

Both squads participated in several pep-rallies designed to prepare the team for the "big" games. The cheerleaders served refreshments to the teams after home basketball games. This "social hour" enabled both the teams and cheerleaders to become better acquainted. Mrs. Linderman advised both squads.

Cross Country

This year's cross-country team had a league record of two wins and eight defeats. After losing a very close opening meet to Wilson, the Warriors defeated Daniel Boone and Mount Penn to record their first victories in cross-country competition since the sport was first introduced at Wyomissing. In addition to the league schedule, the top five runners ran in the District 3 meet where they finished ninth out of twelve teams.

Mike Geissler was the top performer for Wyomissing in eight of the ten races. The four other consistent scorers were: Roger Alley, David Steinrock, John Jones, and Edward Schell.

This was the first season of cross-country running for most members of the team. The hard work and running experience gained this season should prove of value next year when the squad will lose only one member through graduation.

Mr. Donald Gottshall served as mentor for this season's cross-country team. His enthusiasm and guidance were an inspiration not only to the members of the team but also to the spectators who watched the runners in action.

OFFICERS—S. Berry, D. Clay, L. Klein, S. Flemming.

Senior Girls Athletic Association

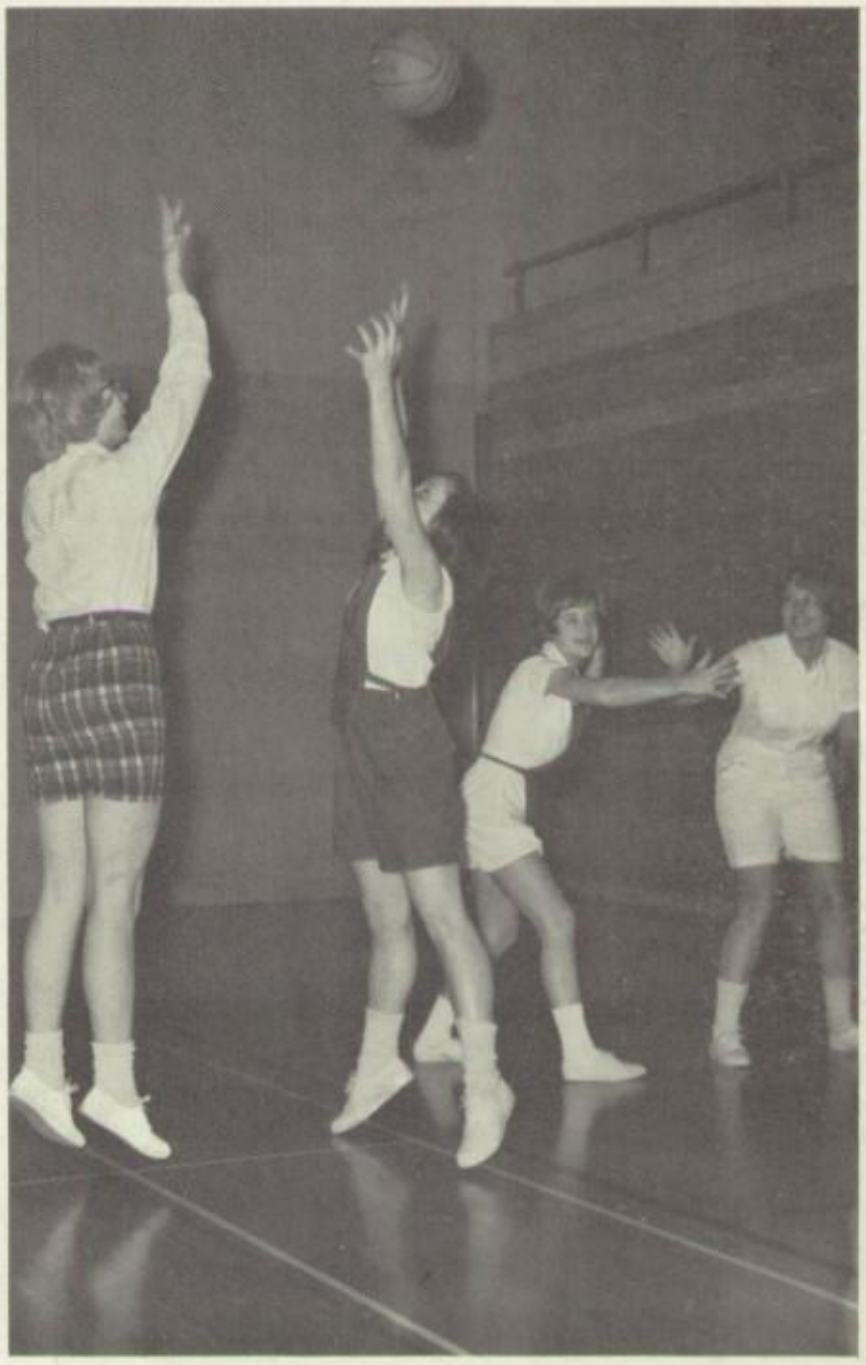
The Senior Girls Athletic Association has completed a rewarding 1963-64 season. The cabinet, consisting of: Lucy Klein, president; Sandra Flemming, vice-president; Darleen Clay, clerk of records; and Susan Berry, secretary-treasurer, helped to create interest and promote participation. Mrs. Linderman, adviser, supervised the girls in their various activities.

In early fall, the G.A.A. organized the annual hockey contests. In addition, the senior and junior girls took part in several hockey playdays with local schools. After the hard play, the girls treated the visiting teams to hot cocoa and doughnuts.

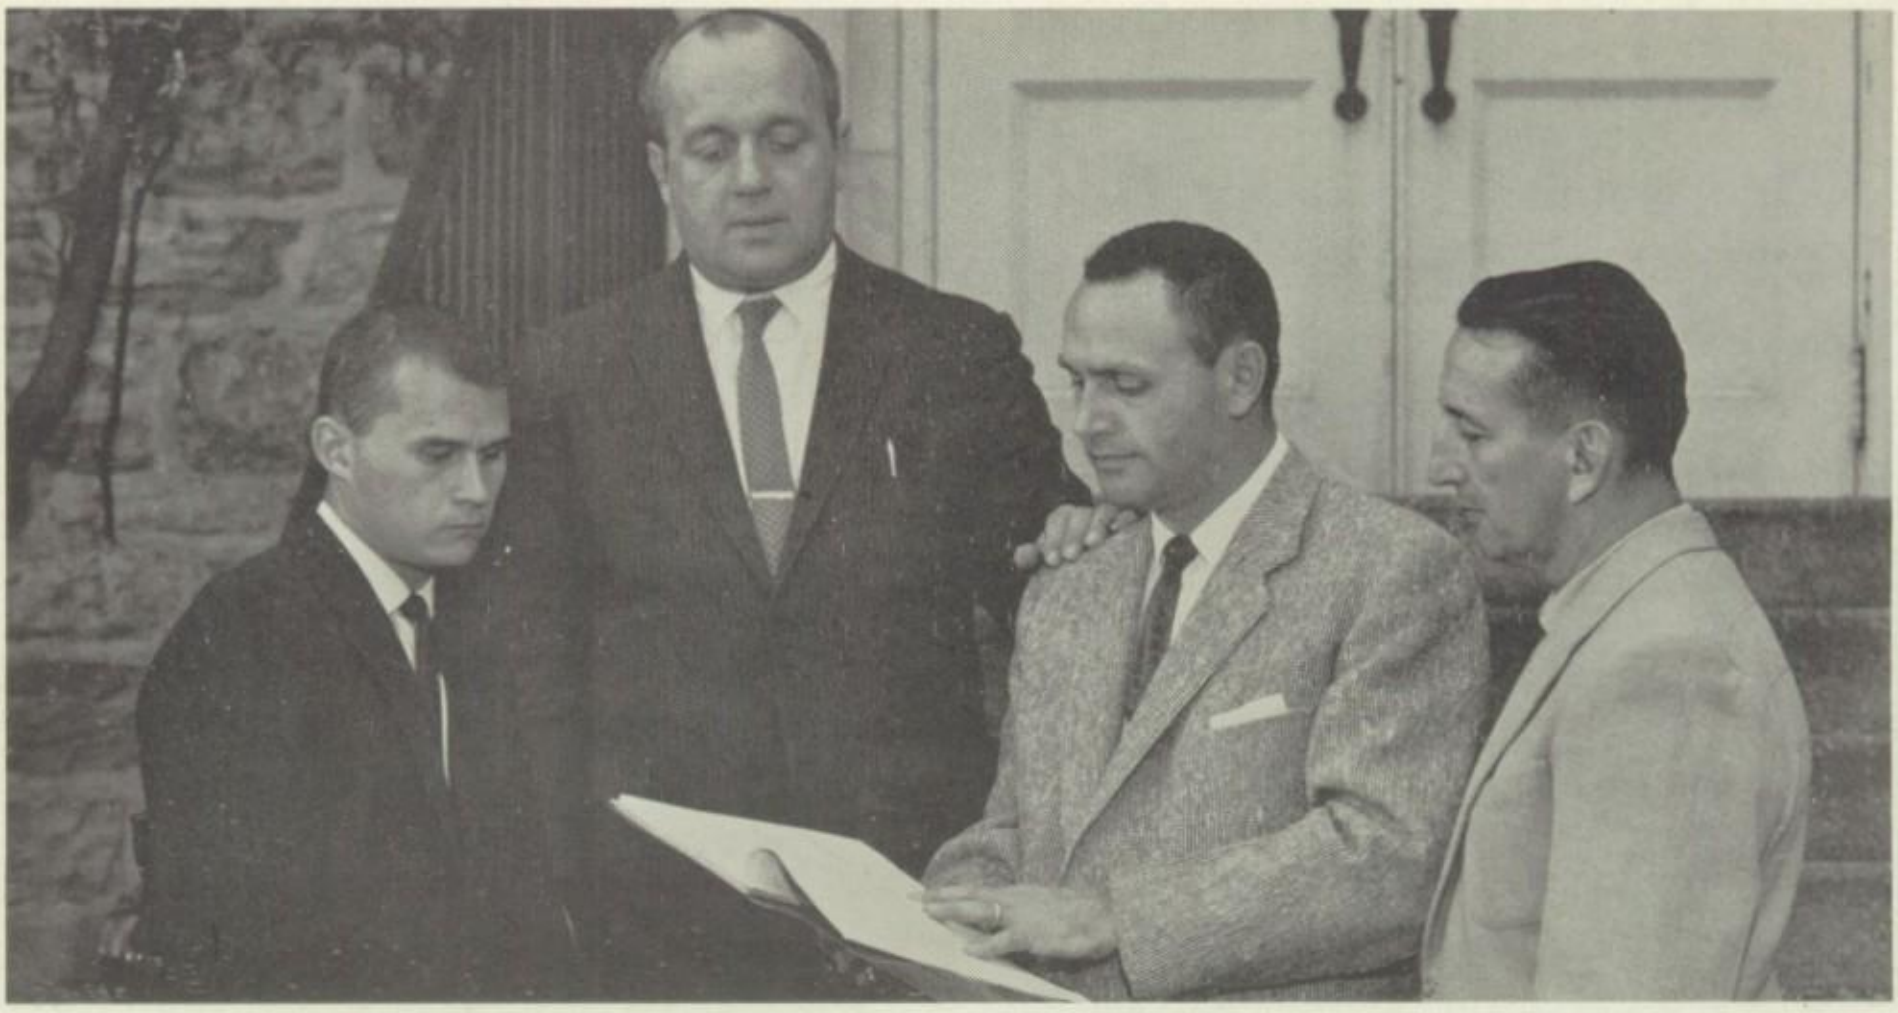
As the year progressed, the girls were able to demonstrate their basketball prowess. This opportunity enabled the participant not only to enjoy the game, but also to learn its fundamentals. Volleyball, transpiring in the spring, rounded out the year's activities.

However, the main objective of the club was to create good sportsmanship and an honest sense of fair play. The spirit developed in their program resulted in the true attainment of their purpose. Physical activity, combined with human values, reaped rewards through total participation.

L. Klein, M. Walborn, L. Schuler, and S. Benkert trudge wearily off the hockey field.



B. Sheetz and L. Klein stretch for the ball, while N. Stewart and S. Reber get ready for action.



Mr. Gottshall, Mr. Gebensleben, Mr. Sheetz, Mr. Allison. Missing—Mr. Aubrey, Mr. Dunkelberger, Mr. Noll, Mr. Reitz.

Coaches

Mr. Aubrey in his coaching stance.

Teaching skills and molding character, the job of the coach, was again successfully accomplished in all varsity sports. Spending a tremendous amount of time and energy, the coaching staff, while instilling the importance of good sportsmanship, led the boys to a gratifying season.

Mr. Gebensleben, this year assisted by Mr. Allison, put the Blue and White through their paces on the gridiron from mid-August until early-November. Mr. "G." also continued the job of supervising the Warriors' tennis team.

This season the varsity basketball coaching chores were handled by Mr. Aubrey, a new addition to the staff of mentors. Junior varsity basketball team, again highly successful, was coached by Mr. Sheetz.

Mr. Gottshall, another new member of the staff, took over the responsibilities of cross-country and track. This year because of the efforts of the coach, cross-country and track became sports to which unprecedented interest was centered.

Mr. Dunkleberger, last year's assistant coach, became the mentor of Wyomissing's 1964 baseball team. The Warriors' golf team, in its fourth season, was led over the links by Mr. Reitz.

Mr. Allison and Mr. Gottshall conducted junior and senior high intramurals.

KNEELING—R. Woolston, R. Golden, D. Berry, R. Bennethum. STANDING—J. Kelly, J. Heisler, B. Carabello, J. Roller, P. Huff.

Managers

An integral part of every athletic team is the manager. Faithfully adhering to the endless desires of the players, he leads a life of subservience and constant ribbing. With qualities ranging from a Monday morning quarterback's to a beast of burden's, these boys perform their tasks with that agreeable attitude found only in a manager.

Jeff Roller, head football-manager, along with John Heisler, Parker Huff, Mark Hawman and Robert Bennethum, was the man on the spot from August until November. Basketball was taken care of by John Heisler, Blase Carabello, Jim Kelly, Parker Huff, Dave Berry and Robert Woolston. Completing the managerial staff were Jim Kelly, Bradly Harrison, Mark Hawman and Robert Golden who handled spring sports. Blase Carabello also served as scorer at the home basketball games.

To be such a person is to be the only unsung hero of a winning team and the scapegoat of a losing one. Surely this myrmidon deserves more than one paragraph of acclamation.

Junior Girls Athletic Association

The Junior Girls Athletic Association included members from grades 7 to 9. Its purpose was to teach the girls good sportsmanship and a sense of fair play. Students were chosen from each homeroom to act as representatives. The latter then gathered names of those who wished to join in the intramural games. The teams were chosen by the cabinet.

Autumn found the players on the athletic field demonstrating their hockey prowess. Although many of the students were playing the game for the first time, their enjoyment was not dampened. This year, the game hit-pin baseball, was introduced. The games were played before classes. The girls faithfully reported for their allotted contests.

Similar to its senior high counterpart, the Junior G.A.A. made basketball and volleyball available for those interested. Also a point system of merit was employed for the outstanding participants.

The cabinet consisted of: president, Sandy Stump; vice-president, Debbie Spang; secretary-treasurer, Dee Scully; clerk of records, Dudley Cleghorn. Each member of the cabinet contributed her ideas to make the year more successful. Mrs. Arlene Linderman, physical education teacher, served as adviser.

Intramurals

For the student who does not have the time, the inclination, or the skill for varsity sports, Wyomissing High has always offered a vigorous, wide-spread intramural program. The program for senior high boys, under the direction of Mr. Donald Gottshall, began immediately in the fall with touch football. Teams of mixed sophomore, junior, and senior boys competed for the touch championship, which was finally won by Buzz Brown's team. Intramural soccer was next on the agenda, featuring inter-grade contests. The junior team compiled the best record here. As soon as the weather turned too cold for outdoor sports, the basketball program was begun. There were four teams in each senior high grade playing intra-grade contests. When the regular season ended, the top team in the junior class league played the top team in the senior class league for the high school intramural championship. The senior team of Russ Boekenkroeger, Buzz Brown, John Friedmann, Kent Hollinger, and Byron Shafer squeaked out a 49-47 victory to win the laurels.

The junior high boys began their intramural season with soccer. Under the leadership of Mr. Allison, the boys met at 7:45 in the morning to play both inter-grade and intra-grade matches. Junior high basketball was a two-pronged program.

Seventh Grade

J. Bertolet directs a group of perplexed "greenies" at orientation.

One of the largest classes in the history of Wyomissing High School, the seventh grade, began the year with the traditional orientation program conducted by the Student Council. Introduced to a myriad of new classes and activities, the "greenies" studied: S.M.S.G. mathematics with Miss Brunner; English with Mrs. Watson, first semester and Mrs. Hill, second semester; geography and history with Mr. Aubry; science with Mr. Manderbach; gym and hygiene with Mrs. Linderman and Mr. Allison; music with Mrs. Hill; art with Mrs. Ritter; home economics with Mrs. Stover; industrial arts with Mr. Shirk; reading with Mrs. Houck; guidance with Mrs. Heffner; and French with Mrs. Bennsinger, first semester and Mrs. Juhlin, second semester.

They were able to participate in Junior Hi-Y, Junior G.A.A., and Intramurals. Sent to represent their class in Student Council were: Edward Agnew, Wendy Jay, Heather Thomas, Douglass Hill, Pete Schlegel, Lisa Braun, Bruce Longenecker, and Caroline Meinig. Vice-president elect of next year's newly formed Junior High Student Council is Pete Schlegel.

Eighth Grade

Eighth grade girls demonstrate their dancing ability at the sock hop.

With one year of junior high school completed, the eighth graders advanced another step in their high school education. This year's curriculum included mathematics with Miss Brunner; history with Mr. Noll; science with Mr. Manderbach; English with Mrs. Hill; reading with Mrs. Houck; art with Mrs. Ritter; French with Mrs. Juhlin; home economics with Mrs. Stover; industrial arts with Mr. Shirk; music with Mrs. Hill; physical education with Mrs. Linderman and Mr. Allison. Membership in all junior high clubs was open to the students.

Sent to represent the class in student council were: Bob Golden, Margo Krissiep, Paul Newlin, Cindi Mercer, Betsy Riley, and Steve Schlegel. Next year Bob Golden and Betsy Riley will serve as president and secretary of the newly formed Junior High Co-operative. Salesmen from the four homerooms were: Mary Tierney, Pricilla Fallon, Jim Houck, and Bill Porch.

Ninth Grade

A friendly "Aloha" from the ninth grade girls — L. Leonard, J. Snyder, D. Scully, K. Nester, J. Bertolet.

Although officially dubbed freshmen, the ninth graders were still limited to junior high activities. The addition of a language swelled their schedules to five majors. Latin, taught by Mrs. Schrack, and French, taught by Miss Jones, were offered. Other subjects were: mathematics, taught by Mr. Weik and Mr. Brubaker; English, taught by Mrs. Getz; civics, taught by Mr. Gebensleben and Mr. Noll; exploring science, taught by Mr. Dunkleberger; reading, taught by Mrs. Houck; notehand, taught by Mr. Goodling; home economics, taught by Mrs. Stover; industrial arts, taught by Mr. Shirk; physical education, taught by Mrs. Linderman and Mr. Allison; music, taught by Mrs. Hill; and art, taught by Mrs. Ritter. Activities opened to ninth graders were Junior Hi-Y, Blue Triangle, Junior Girls' Athletic Association, and intramurals.

This year's student council representatives were: Mary Ellen Jones, Sandy Stump, Gini Boekenkroeger, Karen Nester, John Hain, Craig Stewart, Andy Maier, and Tom Breitinger. As the year ended, the freshmen anticipated the future as an organized senior high class.

Tenth Grade

"The real one will look even better." M. Meinig is measured for class ring while L. Keller and M. Bertolette look on.

The Sophomores' first duty as a senior high class was to elect officers. They were Bill Schlegel, president; Betsy Speicher, vice-president; Wendy Hayes, secretary; and Bruce Newton, treasurer. A new list of activities was opened to the tenth grade including Y-Teens, Hi-Y, Senior G.A.A. and Stage Crew.

Shorthand and typing, taught by Mr. Goodling, and driver education, taught by Mr. Shirk, were the additional subjects offered to the tenth graders. A special after school German class with Mrs. Schrack provided a unique opportunity for interested and ambitious students. A dance, an assembly, and the purchase of class rings were incorporated in this year's list of activities.

Student Council representatives were: Tom Bausher, Alice Coblentz, Pam Giles, Steve Evans, Susan Patton, Bruce Newton, Bill Schlegel, and Betsy Speicher. Pam Giles, Betsy Speicher, and Tom Bausher are secretary-elect, treasurer-elect, and vice-president-elect of the 1964-65 Student Council. The sophomores' first year as an organized class prepared them for the responsibilities they will encounter as juniors.

"What kinds of books are they, girls?" M. McShane. B. Bankes, B. Weist, L. Williams, M. Horst.

The Junior class under the leadership of Ralph Berry, president; Garrett Stevens, vice-president; Pete Schmidt, secretary; and Pat Pingle, treasurer, undertook the annual task of sponsoring the Junior-Senior Prom. The affair this year was held at the Reading Motor Lodge on May 23. In addition, the class of '65 also organized the football concession stand at the Schwenksville game, and a senior high talent show given on January 31.

Among the new subjects introduced to the eleventh graders were geometry, both regular and S.M.S.G., taught by Mr. Brubaker and Mr. Costenbader; biology, taught by Mr. Sheetz; and physics, taught by Mr. Weik.

Jim Fegley, Sandy Derr, Arielle Kozloff, Pete Mohn, Ellen Smith, and Pete Schmidt served as student council representatives. In addition, Midge McShane was vice-president of the student body. Elected as president of next year's student body was Pete Schmidt.

For juniors this year is the most important of any other in relation to college grade transcripts and class standing.

Foreign Students

Wyomissing was host to three foreign students this year. The first to arrive was Ashok Guruswamy of Hyderabad, India. "Sam", as his American schoolmates quickly renamed him, was the guest of Gary Stevens. "Sam" came to us through the American Field Service program and remained through the whole year, graduating with the seniors in June. He studied most of the usual senior subjects, as well as American history and typing. Enthusiastic as well as cooperative, he was a member of the varsity basketball squad, and also attended many club meetings and extra-curricular school functions.

Norma Maria de Lourdes Bueno Cifuentes came to spend three months with us here in Wyomissing through the International Fellowship program. Norma has done extensive traveling during her visit. She has seen New York City and Washington, D. C., while on tour with other foreign students. Adjusting to American life did not seem difficult for Norma as she is compatible, fun-loving, and cooperative. Her hobbies include science (she likes physics and math best) and knitting.

Coming from the same home town, Guayaquil, Ecuador, was Marlene Penaherrara Parades. Like Norma, Marlene came to us through the International Fellowship. A riding enthusiast, she particularly enjoyed her language courses. Marlene also took pleasure in American television, taking walks with her close friend Norma, and having her picture taken. Her hostess was Missy Meharg.

Epilogue

Just as the kingdom of the ancient Egyptians came to an end, so, too, must close our reign and our year as seniors. We, also, saw our moments of glory, our great successes, as well as our share of failures. History has moved on, so must we. Our high school life is done, but certainly not forgotten.

Acknowledgments

As with any yearbook, there were those outside of the student staff without whose help the book could never exist. The 1964 Colophon wishes to thank four men in particular. To Mr. D. C. Shirk, our photography adviser; Mr. Russell Milford, our editorial adviser; Mr. Charles Goodling, our financial adviser; and Mr. George Deininger, our professional photographer, we extend our heartfelt thanks. We also wish to thank Ensinger Printing Service, National Publishing Company, and Lebanon Valley Offset Company. We are particularly grateful to all those patrons who contributed so generously toward making this 1964 Colophon possible.

Tribute

The name of the Greek printer's symbol, Colophon, has been taken as the traditional name for Wyomissing's yearbook. For the Greeks, this symbol also stood for pride in one's completed work. We affix it here and hope that in your judgment our efforts will have merited it.
